

Red China Not Ready to Engage in Modern War

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is drawing the line in Southeast Asia at a time when Communist China's ability to fight a major modern war is in a tailspin.

China's air force is short of spare parts and needs new planes to replace a jet fleet that is largely of Korean War vintage.

Her army, huge in manpower, is strapped for up-to-date tanks and short on artillery.

There are serious scarcities of fuel to run the planes, tanks and vehicles that China does have. It is reported pilot training has had to be limited to conserve aviation fuel.

Red China's military deterioration set in about four years ago when the growing ideological dispute with Russia led the Soviet Union to shut off supplies and technical help to China.

One effect of this has been to set back the day when China can explode her first atom bomb.

The Russian-Chinese split seemingly has deepened and the prospect that the Soviet Union will resume arming China is considered remote.

Moreover, the feud between the two huge Communist countries has stretched China's military resources. She has moved sizable forces within reach of her long border with Russia.

U.S. officials regard as significant Russia's recent warning to Red China that she should no longer count on Russia's backing in a crisis.

Some high officials believe this Russian action was a direct result of repeated U.S. warnings that it is ready to risk war with China to keep Southeast Asia from falling under Communist domination.

Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara has said it will be "many, many years" before

Red China is a first-class power.

This evaluation, based on solid intelligence information, is a main underpinning for the new U.S. "hard line" toward China.

There is an awareness that China could feel forced to call the U.S. hand.

She could, as she did in Korea, send hordes of men rolling southward into Southeast Asia.

If there is one resource China has in abundance, it is manpower. She showed in Korea she is willing to spend it.

But the United States has no intention of getting into a ground war with China unless there is no other way out.

What the U.S. would do, officials have indicated in private, is to apply its massive air power. China's air force would be virtually helpless to halt such an assault.

If China infiltrated the jungles of Laos and Viet Nam in a guerrilla offensive on a big scale, it would be hard to halt such a surge on the ground.

But U.S. aircraft could be expected to hit hard at the sources of supply and reinforcement in China, at highways and railroads, if necessary at industrial centres and bases deeper in the country.

U.S. intelligence has pinpointed a series of military bases and a vast network of roads and railways radiating from South China's Yunnan province toward North Viet Nam and Burma.

Some senior U.S. military men long have advocated hitting at bases and transportation facilities in south China and North Viet Nam to choke off supplies to the Communist guerrillas infesting Laos and South Viet Nam.

Although short on major modern military hardware, the Chinese have plenty of small arms and ammunition—and this is the sort of thing it takes to support guerrilla operations.

Available U.S. marine and army strength in the western Pacific is too thin to undertake a major, sustained ground war.

But the U.S. aces in the game are nearly 3,000 military planes in the Pacific, plus the 125 ships of the 7th Fleet ranged along the Asian coast.

Screaming Whites In Attack

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) — Governor Farris Bryant flew to St. Augustine today for an on-the-scene inspection of a racial revolt reaching a new height of violence.

A screaming mob of hundreds of whites attacked civil rights marchers Thursday night and the integration leader, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., said only the refusal of Negroes to retaliate "saved the city from a bloody night of terror."

In flying to St. Augustine, Bryant bypassed a federal court hearing at Jacksonville, where he had been ordered to appear to show cause why he should not be held in contempt.

Federal Judge Bryan Simpson had issued the order after Bryant placed a ban on night demonstrations at St. Augustine. The judge had held previously that such a ban violated freedom of speech and assembly.

30 UNDER ARREST

About 30 persons were treated or examined at a hospital, and one was admitted for a rib fracture, after Thursday night's assaults on the marchers. Two Negroes and eight whites were arrested.

King said he appealed to the White House for help at the height of Thursday night's melee and was assured the matter would be investigated. He frequently has called for federal marshals' protection.

For the first time in three weeks of almost daily confrontations, state police were openly threatened. On at least two occasions

VICTORIA'S new $1,347,000 YM-YWCA building was officially launched today with laying of cornerstone by Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes, assisted by S. J. Cuniffe, chairman of building committee.

New Y's Cornerstone Laid

By NORMAN CRIBBINS

In the shadow of Christ Church Cathedral, Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes today laid the cornerstone of Victoria's new $1,347,000 YM-YWCA building in the Cathedral Hill precinct.

The ceremony climaxed 18 months of intense campaigning in both eastern and western Canada, and the ceremony was performed in an atmosphere of reverence and jubilation.

"We pray that this building will stand through the years as a monument of honor and virtue to our young men and women," said Archdeacon J. W. Forth in a prayer of invocation.

FLAGS AFLUTTER

The Union Jack, the Red Ensign and the British Columbia flag fluttered in a stiff breeze as Mr. Pearkes laid the foundation stone on the Broughton Street side of a site stretching to Courtney.

"I declare this stone well and truly laid," he said.

Mrs. Pearkes with Hugh R. Stephen, chairman of the campaign; Mrs. K. O. Wright, president of Victoria YM-YWCA; and representatives of the B.C. government, the city council and the municipalities watched the ceremony from a flower-decked dais.

TRIBUTE TO ZEAL

Mrs. Wright referred to the new building — scheduled for completion in May next year — as a tribute to the "zeal, enthusiasm and accomplishment" of Mr. Stephen and his dedicated co-workers.

Mr. Stephen expressed thanks to them and to Stuart Keate, chairman of the national corporations division of the appeal and former publisher of the Victoria Times.

The bright red uniforms of the RCMP band from Ottawa, now touring British Columbia, added a splash of color to the ceremony, which was watched by several hundred spectators.

Seven-year-old Colleen Wong presented a bouquet of red roses to Mrs. Pearkes.

It was a big moment for

REFERS TO PRIMARIES

"The primary votes do not indicate many millions of Americans favor Goldwater," Kennedy told a press conference. "He lost in New Hampshire and Oregon. He won in California but was running only against Governor (Nelson A.) Rockefeller, who had problems involving his personal life."

"That does not indicate widespread support. All of the polls show that Goldwater is not so popular, that he has disadvantages and difficulties to reckon with."

The attorney-general said there is a history of mistrust of the central government in the United States and that any candidate who opposes it will find some followers.

Kennedy will unveil a memorial plaque in the square before the city hall, which has been renamed John F. Kennedy Plaza.

The attorney-general arrived in Berlin from Bonn, where he met Thursday with Chancellor Ludwig Erhard and other West German leaders.

NEGRO APPEALS AGAIN AGAINST 1953 RAPE CONVICTION

Poetry Helps Pass 11-Year Wait for Death

ANGOLA, La. (AP) — In death cell No. 6, Edgar Labat awaits a date with the electric chair decreed 11 years ago, writing poetry to ease his burden.

An all-white jury convicted the 41-year-old former New Orleans hospital orderly March 25, 1953, of assisting in the rape of a white woman in 1950.

In refusing to grant a delay for a recent "habeas corpus" hearing, U.S. District Judge E. Gordon West said Labat has been on death row longer than any other prisoner.

"This case is now the oldest one in the United States," the judge said.

The electric chair is in the death house about three miles from Labat's cellblock.

"On one night I was to die, I saw it," Labat told his lawyer.

"I ate my last meal. The warden was going to have my head shaved. My sister was waiting for my body. I heard the generators cranking up. Then, the phone rang."

Yet, Labat has outwardly adjusted to the grim ordeal of waiting to die.

"His spirits are good," Benjamin E. Smith of New Orleans, Labat's lawyer, said after a recent visit. "He's calm, mature and in possession of all his faculties."

"But you can see the inner pain that he's feeling in his poetry. This is a worse case than Chessman."

Carly Chessman, California's convict author, was executed in 1960 after eight delays that extended his death row term to 12 years.

Labat has received eight stays of execution—four from the Supreme Court.

Strongest ground in his appeal for a new trial, Smith thinks, may be the argument that Negroes were excluded from the jury that convicted Labat and Clifton Alton Foret, another New Orleans Negro.

Foret, now 35, was found in a Tennessee prison serving a sentence for theft two years after the crime. He, too, is on death row and is appealing jointly with Labat.

Robert L. Penedo, 28, and a 22-year-old woman companion accused Labat and Foret of attacking them on a New Orleans street before dawn Nov. 12, 1950. The woman said Labat held her while Foret raped her.

BARE BOSOMS POP OUT ALL OVER THE WORLD

The topless bathing suit for women is getting more exposure around the world. Also the bare-breast evening gown.

Latest reports from the bare frontier:

London — Bikinis without the tops made their television debut on the British Broadcasting Corporation. Two teen-age girls, whose names were withheld, frolicked on a beach in puritanical Wales.

Only rear shots were shown, and the father of one of the girls claimed they were wearing bras held up by a colorless tape. But BBC said it had film to prove the girls were braless.

GALE AND SNIPPER REUNITED

(Times News Services)

HOLLYWOOD — Gale Gilmore walked to a Sunset Strip mailbox Thursday with a package to mail in one hand and her black-and-white mongrel puppy, Snipper, in the other.

"I got confused," she said. She mailed the dog.

Gale, 21, blonde, and an actress, called the dog and cried. Someone else called the newspapers. A passerby called the post office.

"The postal authorities came," Miss Gilmore explained. "A man in a uniform, with a key. He opened the box and there was Snipper, right down in the bottom. Some lady had dropped a letter on his head."

Miss Gilmore got nothing more than a hard look from postal authorities.

"If this was a Hollywood publicity stunt," said one, "it's the first time in Hollywood history that anyone has mailed a dog."

OXFORD, England — An all-male Oxford University college has made the unprecedented decision to admit women.

And if the rest of the university approves, New College might: "manners maketh the man" — will become its first co-educational college.

New College — nearly 600 years old despite the name — wants to admit 20 women students. But opposition to the plan came from an unexpected quarter.

The five women colleges fear that if it goes co-educational it will hamper their own plans to expand.

At present there are 220 male students at New College.

WASHINGTON — An official investigation has disclosed that drunken flying has caused a sharp increase in the mortality rate among thrushes.

The National Institutes of Health ordered elaborate laboratory tests when large numbers of dead birds were found on the Institute grounds.

Scientists discovered the small birds had eaten erabapples which had frozen, thawed and then fermented. The tipsy birds then took wing and crashed into walls and trees, killing themselves.

WINNIPEG — Motorists with serious traffic convictions should be forced to use blood red automobile licence plates, Police Chief Robert Taft said Thursday.

Chief Taft, speaking to the Greater Winnipeg Safety Council, said the plates would "let all the world know" of persons driving during a probationary period.

"I don't know if it has been done anywhere else but it has often been discussed. I'd like to see it in Winnipeg," he said.

Trade Group Makes Deals

HONG KONG Reuters — A Canadian trade mission from British Columbia left today for home by air after concluding business deals in Japan and Hong Kong worth a total of about $10,000,000.

R. Loffmark, British Columbia's minister of industrial development, trade and commerce, who heads the group, told reporters the deals covered the sale of Canadian wood and timber products, minerals and fruits and the purchase of sub-tropical fruits and other items from Japan and Hong Kong.

Cyprus Crisis Back to UN

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Johnson administration, balked in its efforts to set up direct talks between Greece and Turkey, turned to the United Nations today for an easing of the explosive Cyprus crisis.

After four days of apparently unsuccessful personal diplomacy, President Johnson sent Undersecretary of State George W. Ball, his Cyprus trouble shooter, to New York to report to UN officials on the results of his talks with Turkish Prime Minister Ismet Inonu and Greek Prime Minister George Papandreou.

Woman Impaired

A woman picked up after she made a spectacular exit from the Tudor House parking lot on to Esquimalt Road shortly before noon Thursday today pleaded guilty in Esquimalt court to impaired driving.

Mrs. Florence Troutman, 617 Battery Street, almost hit a truck after she drove out on the road. Her car then mounted the curb and hit a power pole.

She was fined $300 and lost her licence.

Berlin — The bare-breast evening gown made its West Berlin debut on starlet Kristina Mangan, 20, and model Jutta Wegener, 22, in a night club. Somebody called police.

The patrol found Jutta's bosom playing peek-a-boo behind six narrow ribbons and a diamond-shaped cutout in Kristina's dress reached from above the bosom nearly to the waist.

COVER YOURSELF

"You young ladies would be well advised to cover yourselves," the leader of the patrol told them.

They covered. The police left. Stockholm — Topless bikinis (calledinis) busted out at Swedish beaches and visiting Soviet Premier Khrushchev ran a poor second in newspaper picture space.

In Scandinavia's biggest daily, Expressen, Gerd Folkeson, 22, displayed bare-breasts at Falster Beach at Sweden's southwest tip.

Said a beach policeman to a group of shocked elderly women in Goteborg: "I have no orders to interfere. Besides I like it if I really do."

Los Angeles — Fans, mostly male, crowded around a clothing store display window where a live model was wearing the suit.

NOT ARRESTED

Sheriff's deputies said the lady was acting ladylike. They didn't arrest her.

One man gazed at the model for an hour and told the sheriff's men "she ought to be arrested."

Hartford, Conn. — Hope Diamond took a dip in a park pond in a topless suit, and was promptly arrested for indecent exposure.

"I had a wonderful swim," she said, emerging into the arms of the law. Hope admitted the public exposure would not hurt her professionally. She's an exotic dancer.

San Jose, Calif. — Several well-dressed women at a restaurant complained to police that barmaid Joy Sheridan was serving drinks while dressed in a topless bikini. The charge was outraging public decency.

"It was cool, comfortable, and real cute," said Miss Sheridan, nonplussed.

casions, angry whites surrounded isolated groups of state troopers and tried to seize Negro prisoners.

On another occasion, a crowd surrounded a state car where two prisoners had been placed and began beating on it. The car, driven by an officer, raced out of the crowd, narrowly missing not only white demonstrators but also other officers.

PASS WHITE RALLY

The Negro parade moved into the downtown square exactly like others which have been held. The proposed route went around the side of the square in which at least 200 whites were holding a segregation rally.

When the Negro column approached, the whites burst through police lines and into the marchers with fists. Some of the Negroes were hit; some of the whites were clubbed by police and arrested.

The parade disintegrated and never reformed. Remnants of the march continued around the square with whites attacking again and again. Finally the march turned into a rout. The Negroes ran toward their section of town, pursued by screaming whites who would hit once or twice, and race on.

The marchers struggled back to their starting point with some near hysteria.

King said some were ready to get guns and return to the scene of the downtown riot.

Segregationists leaders told reporters that counter-demonstrations would continue as long as the Negroes demonstrated.

EMERGENCY PARLEY

Meanwhile, an emergency conference of B.C. labor leaders has been called by the B.C. Federation of Labor.

Secretary Pat O'Neal has advised the 200 affiliated unions to be in Vancouver July 10 "because of the urgency of the situation relative to the Alberni Valley strike."

Mr. O'Neal said the last such meeting was called in 1959 during troubles on the waterfront.

"We were successful then," he said. "I'm not prepared to say what we hope to achieve this time."

He said that although the Alberni strike is of particular significance to the trade union movement, "there are several other strikes . . . which must also be resolved as quickly as possible."

"This is a great day for me," he said, recalling that the cornerstone of the old YMCA at View and Bianshard was laid in 1910 by Premier Sir Richard McBride.

ROOF TRACK

When completed the new concrete building will contain a gymnasium, swimming pool, restaurant, youth centre, main lounge, various meeting and club rooms, health clubs for men and women and 40 rooms for YWCA permanent residents.

An unusual feature will be a running track on the roof of the main section of the building.

EDMONTON (CP) — The RCAF announced today that it has suspended a search in the Northwest Territories for a skid-equipped, single-engine aircraft missing since June 9 with three men aboard.

She was fined $300 and lost her licence.

SELECTED to attend the U.S. Command and General Staff College at Leavenworth, Kansas, is Major C. A. Klemley, formerly of Victoria and now serving as a general staff officer with the directorate of staff duties at army headquarters, Ottawa. He will be there for 10 months starting in late July.

The 7th Fleet has three big carriers from which marine and navy fighters and bombers could be launched against the mainland.

This is what the Chinese have, based on intelligence reports:

1. An air force of about 2,400 planes, mostly elderly fighters — MIG-15s and MIG-17s. As much as half of this force has been immobilized by a shortage of fuel and a need to take parts from some planes to keep others flying. Some medium and long range bombers and a few transports. The 75,000 air force men include about 10,000 pilots.

2. People's liberation army of 2,600,000 men formed into 160 divisions. About three are armored divisions, one is airborne, some are cavalry for desert operations and the great mass are infantry.

China produces about 200 tanks a year, a variety of howitzers, mortars and artillery, plus a missile with an effective range of about 10,000 yards. Some 400,000 Soviet T-style burp guns a year, plus other small weapons.

3. A navy of about 125,000, which includes marines. An air arm of about 500 MIG-17s. Some 30 submarine, about half equipped for mine-laying.

MLA Predicts Hydro to Trim Fare Increase

B.C. Hydro will reduce its proposed new bus fare from 25 to 20 cents, Victoria MLA J. Donald Smith predicted today.

"I think their application is a little heavy," said the city Social Credit MLA.

"And I think they will take a second look at it and come up with 20 cents."

Mr. Smith repeated his earlier proposal for a Crown corporation to operate the transit systems in Victoria and Vancouver areas.

SUBSIDIZE HALF

He was backed up by Saanich Social MLA John Tisdale, who said the provincial government should subsidize half the deficit of the bus systems.

Mr. Smith's proposal, first made in 1961, is for representatives of the municipalities, government and bus drivers' union to hold office in a crown corporation.

"The drivers are probably better informed than anyone about the services and problems," Mr. Smith said. "They should certainly have a voice in the crown corporation, if only in an advisory capacity."

UNTIL ADJUSTED

He said there would have to be a subsidy from the government until the new corporation adjusted its operations.

Mr. Tisdale said an independent transit authority was the only alternative to saddling the municipalities with money-losing bus systems.

He suggested the authority should be extended beyond the present bus routes to cover outlying areas.

TALKS SET

Fallers Back On Job Sans Cans

Macmillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. will carry water cans for loggers at Kelsey Bay while negotiators try to determine who should do so.

The 23 fallers refused to work June 15, demanding an extra $10 each per day for carrying the cans.

The four-gallon cans are carried one to a two-man crew for a total of 17 minutes each day. They are for fire protection.

After union-management talks Thursday in Kelsey Bay, the strikers voted to return to work.

The dispute will be negotiated between Forest Industrial Relations and the IWA regional council.

The company will fill, test and place the cans where the fallers begin work, but the men will not carry them from tree to tree.

Execution Stay For Girl Killer

VANCOUVER (CP) — A stay of execution was ordered Thursday for Lawrence Herman Haase who was under sentence to be hanged June 30 for the murder of 14-year-old Donna Ring near Enderby last October. The stay order was given by Mr. Justice H. A. McLean in Supreme Court who at the same time set a new execution date of Sept. 1.

The application for the stay was made by the crown which said a decision has yet to be handed down by the court of appeal in the Haase case.

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Fleming of New Westminster was re-elected by acclamation as president of the Hospital Employees' Union at its biennial convention here. LEVEL OF CANADIAN PARLIAMENTARY DEBATE

'Shut Up! You Can't Call Me a Liar!'

By JAMES NELSON

Ottawa (CP) — "Stand up or shut up!"

"You can't call me a liar!"

Such was the level of repartee in the Commons Thursday as members continued their partisan infighting in the fourth day of debate on interim spending authority to carry on federal government services for July.

Nobody apart from the Social Credit Leader Thompson mentioned whether or not the routine supply bill should be passed. He said the House should endorse it quickly and get on to important legislation.

Mr. Thompson thus joined in a side discussion in which it was generally agreed something should be done to expedite parliamentary business. But there was no agreement on how.

The Commons today continues the supply debate, filling out the week with it. Conservative MPs recognized at the outset that they could keep the debate going three weeks they might take a general election.

"The way we have been carrying on these past four days is certainly not to the credit of anybody in this House, nor to the advantage of anybody because we are the ones who are the final losers, as well as the country," Mr. Thompson said.

A UN spokesman said Thursday the British cuts will leave the force "about 500 men short" of its strength of 6,400 and that Secretary-General U Thant plans to ask other countries already in the force to send more men to fill the gap.

The spokesman said he did not know which of the nine countries now participating will be asked for more men.

The disclosure came as Canada's Ambassador Paul Tremblay was seeing Thant to inform him officially that Canada will keep its 1,122 men with the force for a second three-month period starting June 27.

The terms will be the same as for the first three months, with Canada maintaining its own men at a cost of about $1,000,000.

In the debate that followed, Douglas Fisher (NDP — Port Arthur) said he believed Mr. Pearson had not directly intervened to prevent the film being shown on television. But Mr. Fisher said he found it difficult to believe that political considerations were not in mind when cabinet ministers, members of Mr. Pearson's staff and Liberal Party Director Keith Davey reviewed the film to screen out anything private, secret or in bad taste.

Mr. Fisher also kicked off the side discussion of House procedures and mentioned the inflammatory question of closure. It inflamed some of his own party members.

MENTIONS CLOSURE

He said that unless agreements can be made among party leaders to voluntarily limit debates and thus get on with parliamentary business, the government might have to consider imposing closure.

"No, no," said Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre). "I object," shouted H. W. Herridge (NDP — Kootenay West).

The only other alternative, Mr. Fisher said, was for the

SAYS NO GROUNDS

Mr. Thompson said there were no grounds for suggesting, as Mr. Churchill did, that in the leaders' meetings the NDP, Social Credit, and Creditiste representatives teamed with the government against the Conservatives.

Mr. Knowles, chairman of a sub-committee on House procedure, said he is in the midst of negotiations with party representatives trying to work out some formula for voluntary rationing of Commons time such as prevails in the British Parliament. This was far from closure, which he opposed.

The wildest scenes in the Commons Thursday involved Creditiste Leader Real Caouette

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker of widening schisms between English and French Canada, and lying about Canadian Mussolini. Mr. Caouette demanded a withdrawal but Assistant Deputy Speaker Herman Batten said he couldn't find that on his list of unparliamentary words.

When asked to withdraw the lying charge, Mr. Caouette said he had been misunderstood while speaking French and meant, in English, that Mr. Diefenbaker had misled the public.

Louis-Joseph Pigeon (PC — Joliette — L'Assomption — Montcalm) said Mr. Caouette was a Canadian Mussolini. Mr. Caouette said Mr. Pigeon was a political clown. At another stage, a Conservative shouted "Hell Hitler" at Mr. Caouette.

The Market Price

HAS THE 12-YEAR BAN ON resale price maintenance in Canada really led to "chaos and confusion rampant throughout the distributive industries," as the Retail Merchants' Association claimed this week at its annual meeting in Vancouver? Or has it led to a better deal for Canadian consumers who are no longer forced to pay an arbitrarily fixed price for certain goods?

In calling for repeal of Section 34 of the Combines Investigation Act, which forbids manufacturers to prescribe prices at which their goods may be sold, the merchants' association charged that Canadian consumers have been "constant victims of unscrupulous dealers who entice them into their establishments by massive and often misleading advertising of brand name bargains." Once lured in, the customer finds that the advertising was just bait and the unscrupulous merchant tries to sell inferior copies of the brand name item.

This has happened, of course, and will likely continue to happen so long as there are unscrupulous merchants and gullible customers. But it hardly seems reason enough to scrap legislation which allows honest merchants the freedom to price their stock at levels they consider fair or profitable and to pass on to their customers the savings effected by efficient management.

The Retail Merchants' Association, in fact, seems to recognize that the real trouble lies not in the Combines Act but in fraudulent advertising, since another resolution passed by the convention was a request for laws against the type of selling which leads to the "chaos and confusion" they find in their industry.

Whether further legislation dealing with "bait" advertising is really necessary is a debatable point. If fraud is, in fact, involved then it should be possible to deal with it through the Criminal Code upon the laying of information before the proper authorities. If it is not fraud as defined by present laws further legislation would not be likely to succeed.

A factor which is easily recognized by consumers in the situation which bothers the merchants' group is that they have a better chance of getting value for their money under a system where the market and not manufacturers determines retail prices.

A Sharp, Hard Lesson

THE SEVERITY OF THE eight-year sentence passed by Judge Drake on an 18-year-old found guilty of robbery with violence, among other charges, gives sharp point to statements made from the bench here in recent weeks.

Offences of this kind, and those which follow a similar pattern, though in some instances less serious, will not be tolerated.

The judge expressed the concern of decent citizens in the general when he referred to "31 cases involving beatings since last December in this area." Public indignation over the behaviour of hoodlums in the community had reached a high pitch before the brutal offence tried in County Court this week. Now in open court, Judge Drake has given expression to the sentiments these cowardly and vicious attacks have aroused, and he has shown in no uncertain terms what it means when he says they are not to be tolerated.

Other youths involved have been allowed lighter sentences because, as the judge diagnosed their position, they were "merely stupid oafs" presumably amenable to reform. If they do not learn their lessons from the terms given to them, they may rest assured that repetition of their actions later will meet very sharp treatment.

It is to be hoped that the example made of this particular group will not be lost on the rising number of immature boys — and girls—who have, in recent months, been progressing downward toward gang rumbles and more serious offences.

The "dog packs" to which Magistrate Ostler has referred on occasion now have before them in clear and harsh outline an object lesson they cannot ignore.

All but the mentally deficient should have no difficulty in understanding it. If they keep on the offensive path they have been following, they should have no doubts about their ultimate destination.

There are, of course, some individuals who turn eventually to the type of violence and crime indicated in this week's trial. There are others—the ones Judge Drake characterized as "stupid oafs"—who merely follow and become enmeshed in the gang pattern.

The eight-year sentence should impress the latter—and not the juveniles and youths alone. It should also bring home to parents or guardians the necessity of maintaining an environment which nurtures a better class of citizen than some of the young in Greater Victoria are becoming. The majority of homes in this community provide a constructive environment.

Those which do not—and they are not solely the homes of the poor—should set about remedying the domestic atmosphere.

Failure there can too easily result in the failure as decent human beings of such youths as those sentenced this week.

Ports of Call

THE COMPANY OPERATING the ferry service between Gold River, Tahsis and Zeballos on the west coast of Vancouver Island claims it needs another $1,000 a month in subsidy in addition to the $1,000 already being received from Ottawa and it has requested that the provincial government provide the additional funds.

In backing the request to the province, Alberni MLA John Squire has pointed out that if the three communities linked by the service were located, say, in the Gulf Islands, there would be no question of the responsibility lying with the province. But since the ferry does not connect with any provincial highway the provincial government is able to disclaim responsibility.

Highways Minister Gagliardi has been willing so far only to add his request to that of the ferry company that Ottawa put up the additional subsidy—a request which has been turned down. Probably if the province did step in it would give the federal government an excuse to transfer the whole responsibility to the province.

However, if out of the present stalemate on subsidies comes discontinuance of the transportation service for some 2,400 people there is going to be serious trouble. The Zeballos-Tahsis-Gold River area is becoming increasingly important to the economy of the province because of its forest and mineral wealth. But the logging and mining need workers and people cannot be attracted easily to areas where access is limited.

It is possible, of course, that further subsidization of the present ferry company is not the answer to the problem. It may be that an entirely new service, linking all the West Coast communities with up-to-date equipment would be more efficient than the patchwork of ferries now operating. Perhaps, too, the mining and forestry companies which operate in the area should be called on to provide financial assistance for a ferry service which is in their interests to have maintained.

In any event, the provincial government cannot afford to sit by if these communities are in danger of being isolated from the rest of the province. If Ottawa will not give further aid, the people involved will certainly look to Victoria for an answer to the problem.

Catch 'Em Young

THE COMMERCIAL APPEAL of Memphis reports a shattering development in the manufacture of children's toys for next Christmas.

One of the largest producers in the United States displayed his wares to prospective customers the other day and revealed that the distinction this year will be the emphasis on sound. Toy bicycles and tricycles will be styled like motorcycles, with a battery-powered device that will emit a starting roar at the press of a button. Toy trucks, racing cars and the like will be similarly equipped with sound.

The Commercial Appeal suggests that this is just another of the gadgets to make parents miserable come the arrival of Big Ho-Ho-Ho on December 25.

The Commercial Appeal misses the point. This is the scientific way of accustoming the young to the world of the future. Raise a small child on the cacophony of his noise-making toys, and you'll never have to worry about him protesting sonic booms when the airliners of the future pass over his home.

Devilish, isn't it?

THE KEYNOTE OF PARTICIPATION

The Logic of the Joint Services Board

An Exclusive Statement By Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell

THERE is a growing recognition by many thoughtful people that certain functions of local government require a regional approach. Unfortunately the history of attempts to achieve this regional approach have been unhappy to say the least. However, the problems created by the lack of a regional approach are quite easy to define and to isolate. Essentially the lack of regional administrative machinery creates three problem areas. The first is financial. The local area costs of formula sharing programs offered by senior governments are unfairly apportioned among the property owners of a region, organized and unorganized.

The second is lack of co-ordination. For example, the forward-looking sewerage scheme of one municipality may be completely undermined by the health menace created by disposal methods used in an adjacent area—germs do not respect political boundaries.

The third is involved with land use. The topographic features of the capital region created it as a unity long before man did his political carving job. Thus without some co-ordinated land-use machinery the amenities, services and sprawl of the urban areas clash with the character and service requirements of the rural countryside.

In order to solve these indicated problems amalgamation and metro have been tried. As the purpose of this article is to outline an alternative to both these courses perhaps it would be wise to indicate how the proposal of the Department of Municipal Affairs differs from each of the alternatives tried elsewhere. In the case of Amalgamation vs. a Joint Services Board the difference is obvious.

Metro Characteristics

A metro form of government has the following characteristics. It has independent power to tax. It has power to initiate projects. It has independent policy authority. It has independent power to act on specified services delegated to it by senior government rather than power to undertake services generated upon the agreement among the local governments of the separate parts of a region for a particular service. It is in every sense of the word a third level of government. Therefore, it does not eliminate the problem area of co-ordination.

The concept of a Joint Services Board, however, is quite different. A Joint Services Board is clearly an extension of local government to undertake those works and services upon which common action is required and for which agreement on cost sharing formulae has been reached.

It is, therefore, clearly not a third level of government. Further, a Joint Services Board derives its authority to initiate projects and to requisition taxes through the representative base of local government and not through the delegation of that authority from senior government. It is, then, by nature not an imposed solution but a negotiated one. Co-ordination of the financial requirements of its member areas is, therefore, eliminated as a major problem.

There are other differences but finally, the Joint Services Board proposed for the capital region will not leave the countryside strewn with the wreckage of present informal and formal examples of inter-area co-operation now existing in the Capital Region—Water Board, Health Board and the like. It is really an expansion and a formalizing of that which is already proven sound and good. Metro on the other hand has one fatal flaw. In concept it throws the baby out with the bath water.

Now it seems to me that in a democratic society the keynote to the creation of new forms of procedure should be the participation of those affected by any changes. In approaching the concept of a Joint Services Board, the Department of Municipal Affairs is seeking to underline the keynote of participation.

In effect, my department has asked the representatives of the people in the Capital Region three questions:

(1) Do you agree that the problems of this area which require a regional approach are:

- (a) Regional Parks
- (b) Health and Hospitals
- (c) Sewerage and Garbage Disposal
- (d) Water Supply
- (e) Regional Planning.

The concept of a Joint Services Board, however, is quite different. A

(2) Do you agree that these problems can best be handled by a Joint Services Board or do you prefer Metro, Amalgamation or a multiplicity of single boards?

(3) Having agreed that the problems are defined and isolated and having agreed that the creation of a Joint Services Board is the best course of action to follow, are you prepared to actually participate in the creation of the legislative machinery required to achieve this result?

As I see it, the success or failure of this approach towards the creation of a Joint Services Board now rests with the will of the people as expressed through their representatives whom I now propose to call to working conferences. As I indicated at the original conference, I do not propose to limit that representation to the existing municipal units. I feel that the unorganized areas of the capital region are entitled to participate as well.

Area One Unit

If the concept of a regional approach is sound and I believe that it is clearly so, the whole area must be considered as a unity. I believe at this time and in this place it is the responsibility of the Department of Municipal Affairs and all local representatives to do their part to achieve a regional approach here and now.

For what it is worth, my opinion is that history will not be kind to those who fail in achieving unity among the constituent parts of the Capital Region — there is no more challenging real estate on earth—there are fewer parts where geography has created a so clearly defined region.

There is only one final observation that perhaps should be stated clearly on this matter. Far too often proponents of metro and/or amalgamation have been unwilling to search out alternative procedures for dealing with regional problems. Further, they have sought to have the epithet of "parochial thinker" or "old guard" on those who value the close contact that local government can maintain with the people on a variety of services which do not require a regional approach.

It seems to me that one factor is overlooked by those who argue for metro or amalgamation on this basis. No one has ever been able to successfully discount the social values of the close contacts maintained by local governments and the people. I believe that these social values are important. The concept of a Joint Services Board will not destroy them.

ON S.E. ASIA

The Need For Candor

By MAX FREEDMAN

IN the past few days, both in Washington and Southeast Asia, various spokesmen for the Johnson administration have raised the prospect of a war with China. If the Peking government does not stop making trouble in Viet Nam, this kind of threat is more likely to divide and worry American opinion than it is to frighten Peking or to serve the cause of peace. Although the warning is addressed to China, the real culprit is North Viet Nam. Until now, the United States has blamed North Viet Nam for the unrest in South Viet Nam and Laos. It has acted on the belief that North Viet Nam did not wish to be a mere puppet of China.

This belief has now collapsed. For it makes no sense at all to think of raids on selected targets in North Viet Nam if China's strength has first to be broken before a settlement can be reached.

In all previous discussions, two extreme courses were always excluded from serious consideration. It was assumed that the United States would never run away from Viet Nam, nor would it threaten military action against China. For the flimsiest of reasons, and without advancing any proof that the new policy would succeed, these administration leaders have now decided to file a direct military challenge at China.

What Punishment

How is China to be punished? Presumably not even these advocates of reckless war are in favor of landing American troops in China, though such action may become inevitable if they are allowed to have their way. China cannot be broken by attacks from the sea or by landings from the air. Are we to drop some hydrogen bombs on China? That would at once expose us to the fatal charge that we reserve our most deadly weapons for the people of Asia. This charge would cause us more damage in Southeast Asia than the worst defeat we could suffer in Viet Nam.

Now would we have very much help in trying to crush Chinese resistance. Not a single member of the NATO alliance would support this reckless adventure. It does no good rebuking our NATO partners. They see no similarity at all between the Berlin problem and the situation in Viet Nam. For many years Berlin has been a common responsibility for the whole alliance. No such shared responsibility has ever been accepted in Viet Nam.

The political goals sought by the United States may have commanded general agreement but the military burden, in essentials, has fallen on this country alone. So would the agony of a war with China. After Korea it is not permissible for any American to make light of what China is capable of.

Besides, no one can now say with exact knowledge what Russia's role would be in such a struggle. Russia has a treaty to come to the defense of China if China is attacked. This treaty has now been questioned by Russia but has not been repudiated. What right has anyone in Washington to assume that Moscow would do nothing while America lunged at China?

Consequences

This might be the one thing that could still bring Russia and China together in a common policy. Or Russia might go on fresh adventures of her own while America was bogged down in China. Have these risks and dangers been sufficiently weighed by our policy-makers?

Perhaps this whole effect is simply designed to prove that the Johnson administration can be as tough as Senator Goldwater. It had better watch itself or it will merely prove that it is more stupid than the senator.

Only one remedy is left. President Johnson must take the American people into his full confidence. There must be an end to these melodramatic briefings by senior officials who refuse to be quoted by name and who refuse to accept personal responsibility for their provocative statements. President Johnson should know that many Americans will recoil in anger and indignation from our present course in Viet Nam if it leads to a war with China.

In the past President Johnson has always said he wanted a policy of firmness without provocation. What is urgently needed now is a statement by President Johnson making clear that he still clings to this basic distinction and will have no part in the schoolboy heroics of flinging a gage of battle at China.

DENNIS THE MENACE

By RICHARD PURSER
from Gaza, Egypt

It is merely to report that it takes a sophisticate not to grumble at being plunged into an utterly alien way of life where poverty is the chief factor.

For the Gaza Strip is desperately, agonizingly poor. Its natural poverty heightened by the presence in its small area of hundreds of Palestinian refugees.

The sight of mass impoverishment, disease and malnutrition is a shattering experience for those who have not been brought up to it. It is the truth behind the stories of filth, obscenity, beggary, violence and robbery spun by Western soldiers here.

These reactions are not necessarily biased. If the Egyptians are called Gypsies by Canadian troops, the Israelis are called "Yehuds."

The abilities of Brazilian soldiers and personal habits of Indian soldiers also come in for rude comment.

Servicemen everywhere have always made sport of the customs of local inhabitants where they are stationed, but in the new type of service envisaged by Mr. Helyer under the UN flag, Canadians will usually be stationed abroad only with the consent of the host peoples and in comradeship with other soldiers themselves representing alien ways of life.

Understanding is going to be more important in future. And it would appear from the Gaza case that social education should be a prerequisite for this type of service.

Mr. Helyer himself in his stirring speech at the UNEF officers' luncheon did not dwell on the surface manifestations of poverty. He said we must strike

INSIDE POLITICS

With Douglas Fisher, M.P.

Let me clean up some points raised by readers about recent columns.

Some letters have complained about my anti-Liberal bigotry. The reaction is linked mostly to opinions I have expressed about the Prime Minister, Mr. Pearson. I reiterate what I have written before: my evaluations are made from personal observation; they represent, in my opinion, fair comment by one man.

The other day a nephew of the Prime Minister, Christopher Young, described some of my writing as "wounding" and "deeply biased."

He happens to be the editor of a Liberal newspaper, the Ottawa Citizen. I could dig out some of the fair comment he made as a journalist observing the last two campaigns to demonstrate how moderate I have been. Instead I offer two quotations, the first from a British journalist describing the recent government leader, Harold Macmillan, the second from a speech made by Mr. Pearson, four years ago, on then Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

"Macmillan seemed, in his very person, to embody the national decay he supposed himself to be 'confounding.' He exuded a flavor of mothballs. His decomposing visage and somehow seedy attire conveyed the impression of an aging and eccentric clergyman who had been induced to play the part of a Prime Minister in the dramatized version of a Snow novel put on by a village amateur dramatic society."

"This government has continued to handle the matters which have come before it—when the Prime Minister has got round to handling them at all—with a confused and evangelistic inefficiency which very often amounts to ineptness. The fact is that this government still manages, as we pointed out last year, to mistake movement for progress, adjectives for action . . . demagogic for democracy, propaganda for performance. Procrastination, political manoeuvring, drift still characterize its approach to the problems it has to face."

Best Invective

This last was fair stuff for an attacking politician, out to put Mr. Diefenbaker's performance into a Liberal perspective.

I suggest it is neither worse nor better, it is similar, to the kind of judgments I have been making of Mr. Pearson. In fact, his words of four years ago only need the changing of one word "evangelistic" so that it would read "image-building inefficiency" to be for me a perfect description of Mr. Pearson and his government.

WEEKEND WEATHER PICTURE ACROSS CANADA

SYNOPSIS—A weather disturbance centred in the northwestern United States has spread some cloudiness into the southern portions of British Columbia. A few showers or thunderstorms are likely to occur in southern sections of the province this afternoon as the system moves northeastward. Sunshine should be the dominant feature of the weather over the rest of the province today with temperatures similar to those of yesterday. A weather system now moving eastward through the Gulf of Alaska will bring showers to the north coast Saturday morning with an increase in cloudiness in the northern interior. Generally fair weather is forecast for the remainder of the province on Saturday.

Snack Time Arrives For Bedding Plants

By MILDRED BEASTALL

The weather has been kind to bedding plants, allowing them to settle into their flowering quarters without too much baking.

So long as they have been given just enough water to counteract the effect of the drying winds, the petunias, snapdragons, African marigolds, zinnias and the single stock are some which benefit from this attention.

Petunias, one of the most prolific bloomers, fortunately seldom set seed in our climate, and need not have dead flowers removed. Neither do alyssum, the red salvia, lobelia or ageratum.

It is quite common practice to add fertilizer to the soil when putting in the bedders, in which case it is not necessary to give more at this time.

However, if no fertilizer was put in when planting, now is a good time to make this addition.

MAKE SOLUTION

Probably the easiest and most economical way to supply a feeding to a quantity of bedding plants is to make up a solution of fertilizer according to the manufacturer's directions and apply on the soil around the plants.

Sex Education Backed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sex education in schools after discussions among the interested sectors of the community was recommended Thursday at the annual convention of the Canadian Medical Association.

The CMA's governing general council heard a report containing a recommendation that the sex education be one of the health subjects taught in the schools.

Dr. G. E. Duff Wilson, chairman of the physical education and recreation committee, said the association believes in the education but only after there is local consultation. This would include parent organizations.

The report said the recommendation should be referred to other CMA committees before it is ratified. After ratification it should be sent to provincial departments of health and education.

Dr. Wilson said the medical profession should be involved in community discussions on sex education. Doctors should be considered as teachers because there were not enough competent teachers on the subject.

He said he did not know whether sex education would decrease the illegitimacy or venereal disease rates—"but it will increase knowledge."

DRINKING DRIVERS

The council also dealt with the drunken driver in deliberations that ended its meetings.

On the drinking driver, the council passed a section of the report of the committee on the medical aspects of traffic accidents recommending "that all licensing authorities be asked to give special study to all persons with alcohol problems who apply for driving permits."

Committee chairman Dr. Wallace Troup of Ottawa said the intent of the suggestion is that convictions for alcohol offences, whether they involve driving or not, be considered when drivers' licences are issued.

He said a person who had a record involving drinking "might" have more difficulty obtaining a licence. He said the committee did not work out the details of the suggestion.

The committee also suggested provincial divisions seek support from provincial governments and bar associations for changes in the criminal code provisions dealing with drinking and driving.

Dr. Troup said there is need for clear definitions of the offences of driving while impaired and driving while intoxicated.

Cox Forecasts Early Vote On Oak Bay Capital Works

Oak Bay ratepayers may be asked to vote on a capital works budget before the end of the year, Reeve Allan Cox announced at an Oak Bay Board of Trade meeting Thursday night.

After outlining the major problems facing the municipality, the reeve said that early this fall council will begin discussing capital works on the basis of a five-year plan.

"When we do capital works out of taxes, we can't plan," he said.

If school taxes go up then the capital works program has to be cut and municipal employees laid off.

TRAFFIC, PARKING

"We want to borrow enough money to carry out these projects," he said.

Traffic, parking and sewage are major problems which face Oak Bay, the reeve told the Board.

Solution to the traffic problem will depend largely on the results of the traffic survey to be released in September.

As for sewage, he warned the board that this will be a major expense which the people will have to pay for before too long.

BIG PROBLEM

Parking is a major problem if Oak Bay merchants are to survive, he said.

He told the merchants council is prepared to meet them half-way in a parking scheme presently being prepared by the parking committee of the Board of Trade.

The transit system, the reeve said, is something which should be operated, and subsidized if necessary, out of the profits of the B.C. Hydro Authority.

Since the municipality's only source of revenue is from the land it is time the senior governments took over the costs of education, health services, hospitals and welfare, the reeve said.

Such a change would also assist the council with zoning and planning.

some garden furniture,

and send a few dollars back to the bank.

Okay, if the car costs so little what do you get? Good question. So are the answers:

Smart styling including the reverse-slat rear window that gives extra headroom and stays clear of rain and snow;

Up to 40 miles to the gallon; 13-cubic feet in the trunk; Rich interior styling;

Cushioned bucket seats; And a fresh air heater that keeps everyone warm.

So get your new Anglia, your new clothes and garden furniture.

Then take the change back to the bank.

Can't you just see the look on the manager's face?

'BEWARE OF TOBACCO' NOTICES UNDER STUDY

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister Judy LaMarsh told the Commons Thursday that the government is waiting for a report from an advisory committee on smoking before deciding whether warnings should be printed on cigarette packages.

The committee was set up following last year's federal-provincial conference on smoking and health.

Miss LaMarsh said in reply to questions from F. B. Rynard (PC—Sooke East) and Barry Mather (NDP—New Westminster) that any decision would involve the question of whether the government could insist on such health warnings on cigarette packages. This would be considered when the committee's report is available.

BREWER'S CLAIM:

Few Alcoholics In Beer Parlor

MONTREAL (CP) — Senator H. deM. Molson, president of Molson Breweries Ltd., today called beer "the true beverage of moderation."

Speaking to the annual meeting of shareholders, Senator Molson said that "where beer consumption is high, alcoholism is low." This view was confirmed by information received from around the world.

"For example, in Belgium today per capita consumption of beer is over twice that of Canada and the highest in the world, while the alcoholism rate is among the lowest in the world."

BEAR HEAVY TAXES

"We have been under severe criticism for years from various groups who believe that beer constitutes a threat to the sobriety of our nation," he said. "The strict limitations on advertising and the very heavy tax load we bear are in part the result of these unfounded beliefs."

"We believe that people are entitled to enjoy alcoholic beverages in moderation," he said. To promote moderation, beer should be available at the lowest possible prices relative to those of beverages of higher alcoholic content.

Some nations had already accepted this principle. "In Austria and Germany beer and milk are the only two beverages which are exempt from the tax levied on all alcoholic and non-alcoholic beverages," he said.

"Greater freedom to advertise and a reduction in taxes are most effective ways to reduce the abuse of alcohol."

Senator Molson said the increase in the price of beer in Quebec last fall is expected to lead to a better contribution to the consolidated net profit from operations in this province. Earnings in Quebec had not been keeping pace with those in other markets.

Increased fermenting capacity in Vancouver, where volume increased by nearly 10 per cent last year, is to be the major capital expenditure in 1964, costing some $630,000.

Appeal Due On 8-Year Jail Term

Lloyd De Wolfe, 18, of 1018 Balmoral, will appeal his eight-year sentence in the B.C. Penitentiary.

De Wolfe was sentenced to eight years in B.C. Assize Court here Wednesday on a charge of robbery with violence and five years (to run concurrently) on a charge of abduction.

Judge Montague Drake passed sentence on De Wolfe and three other 18-year-olds found guilty of beating, robbing and abducting William Morgan, 19, of Saanich Road on April 7.

Jack Gatehouse, who volunteered his services as defence counsel for De Wolfe without fee, said De Wolfe told him he would appeal the eight-year sentence, and Mr. Gatehouse advised him as to how his appeal could be made.

DECLINE NOTED IN B.C. WELLS

By T. M. CLARIDGE

British Columbia's oil industry, which some experts a couple of years ago said would soon rival Alberta's, has hit a decline which one government official described as "remarkable."

In terms of recent statistics the decline has been spectacular. By the end of May only 53 drilling permits had been granted by the petroleum resources department, compared with 105 at the same point last year.

And of 88 wells drilled so far this year 39 have been abandoned as dry—not bad for most of the world's oil fields, but well below B.C.'s performance in 1962, when 317 drillings produced only 93 abandonments.

The total footage drilled also is down sharply, to 306,592 feet from 540,214 at the comparable date last year. Wildcat drilling has been halved to 126,066 feet.

A petroleum resources official suggested two possible explanations: A lack of prospective new markets for natural gas and the fact recent drillings have failed to uncover any major new field.

"We are finding little pools," he said, "but we need a major one to get things going again."

He suggested a third possible factor is that most of the oil firms drilling in B.C. also operate in Alberta, where there is surplus production.

Most of the current drilling is in the Peace River area of northeastern B.C., scene of the province's major oil strikes, and the Kotcho Lake district near the B.C.-Yukon border.

Exploratory work also is going on in the Pacific between Vancouver Island and the Queen Charlottes, where Shell Oil of Canada is operating under both federal and provincial licences while the two governments decide the mineral rights.

Most experts agree B.C.'s current problem is less one of supply than of demand.

By the middle of 1963 estimates of natural gas reserves in the province had reached eight trillion cubic feet—compared with 3.3 trillion in 1961—and known oil reserves were 450,000,000 barrels, up from 68,000,000 in 1962.

The demand situation would change radically if rumored plans go through for natural gas liquefaction plants at Vancouver or the far northwestern port of Stewart.

The liquefaction plants would chill natural gas to -264 degrees Fahrenheit and condense it to 1/40th its original volume. The liquid gas then would be moved by specially-designed tankers to world markets.

It Costs $75,000 to Fix $135,000 Contract Error

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dawson Construction Co. of Vancouver said Thursday it withdrew a low bid on a Columbia River project because the bid contained an error.

The company forfeited a $75,000 performance bond to the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority in taking the action.

B.C. Hydro awarded the contract for relocation of three and

GE, Olivetti Negotiate Sale

$1.3 Million Outlay By Rio Algom Mines

TORONTO (CP)—Rio Algom Mines Limited has announced it will spend $1,300,000 over the next two years to keep open its Pater copper mine in the Elliot Lake area. The new facilities, which will make available a further 900,000 tons of two-per-cent copper ore, will enable the mine's 160 workers to retain their jobs at least until 1970.

Copper Output Up

OTTAWA (CP)—Production of copper increased 4.5 per cent in April to 38,224 tons from 36,570 in the same month last year, the bureau of statistics said today.

In the January-April period output rose 8.5 per cent to 153,426 tons from 141,391 a year previous. Production of nickel declined 1.7 per cent in the month to 19,585 tons from 19,819 a year earlier and two per cent in the four months to 74,798 tons from 74,976.

RETAIL MERCHANTS PROPOSE:

Close All Stores on Holidays

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Retail Merchants Association of Canada agreed Thursday to seek federal enforcement of national holidays on all types of retailers across Canada.

Delegates to the annual meeting said the enforcement was needed to stop abuse of some holidays by "promotional outlets and mass merchandisers".

The association also called for federal adoption of mandatory daylight saving time across Canada but failed to reach a decision. Instead they decided to study the matter.

Dawson's bid, the lowest of three submitted, was for $765,232. The only other bid was from Standard General Construction (International) Ltd. for $1,164,524.

Dawson claimed it had made an error of $135,000 in its bid and refused to perform the work at its quoted price. B.C. Hydro ruled the company either stick to its bid or forfeit the bond.

A company official said the firm would not try to recover the bond.

Denver Executive Threatens Lawsuit In Bid to Stay In DENVER (AP) — A legal fight was threatened Thursday night to keep the Denver Invaders of the Western Hockey League in the Colorado capital.

C. Stafford Smythe, president of the Toronto Maple Leafs and a majority stockholder in the Invaders, announced earlier Thursday that he was pulling the team out of Denver.

WHAT DEADLINE?

Smythe said the Invaders had failed to meet a June 19 deadline to sell 2,000 season tickets.

Don Bolger, team president, termed Smythe's action "a low blow, not only by the Toronto club, but by the Western Hockey League."

Other teams in the league were reported also interested in getting rid of Denver and cutting travel expenses. Vancouver claimed it cost the club $30,000 additional travel expense while Seattle and Portland pegged the

Bolger said the Invaders will finish getting the 2,000 pledges promised to keep the franchise in Denver. He said he had a verbal agreement that the deadline was June 30.

He said he would look into all aspects in seeking redress through legal action.

NEEDS LEAFS

Bolger is a leading stockholder in the Denver group which owns about 35 per cent of the Invader corporation. He admitted it would be impossible to operate unless as a farm club of Toronto.

"We only have eight or nine players of our own," he said.

"The rest came from Toronto."

IN FRONT BY FIVE

Norman Sparks Westminster

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Backed by the net-minding of Les Norman, New Westminster hammered Vancouver 8-4 Thursday night in Inter-City Lacrosse League action.

Norman turned in a spectacular performance, saving 13 of 14 Vancouver shots on goal in the third period.

The victory gave New Westminster a five-point edge in standings on second-place Vancouver.

The Vancouver attack was dormant in the first half, scoring twice in only eight shots directed toward Norman. New Westminster took a 1-0 edge in the first period and scored only one goal in the second for a 2-2 tie going into the second half.

New Westminster outscored Vancouver 3-1 in the third period and 3-1 in the fourth.

Paul Parnell led the Royal City attack with two goals and one assist. Wayne Shuttleworth netted a pair and singles came from Bill Wilkes, Jack Barclay, Cliff Sepko and Terry McKibbin.

Vancouver scoring was handled by Gord Gimpel, Sid Warick, Pete Black and Fred Usselman.

Sports Empire Builder
Dandurand Dies at 75

MONTREAL (CP) — Leo Dandurand, 75, a dynamic figure in Canadian sports in the golden era of the 1920s, died early today.

Dandurand, who shrewdly foresaw that sport's golden era was in the making after the First World War, was associated with some of Canada's greatest teams.

In partnership he also built a horse-racing empire that spread from Quebec to Louisiana.

At various times he headed the direction of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference, then known as the Big Four Football League, and

He severed his active sports direction several years ago, selling his race track interests and then his interest in the Montreal Royals of baseball's International League.

In his later years the grey-thatched businessman with the warm friendly smile ran one of the city's most successful downtown restaurants.

Dandurand was a native of Bourbonnais, Ill., who came to Canada as a youth to attend Montreal's French-language Ste. Marie College and stayed.

Democrats Sniff Big Victory As Goldwater Splinters GOP

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP)—As the first of the big U.S. political conventions draws near, Democrats sense a big victory in fall voting for president and a congress.

Moderate Republicans sadly tend to agree with them. Not in years has the Republican party been so divided and demoralized.

Some analysts are already blaming former president Dwight D. Eisenhower, titular head of the party, for what may turn out to be its greatest election defeat in recent times.

His refusal to fight extremists in his party and his reluctance to come out strongly for a moderate presidential candidate for the November elections have given the Republican far right wing cause for jubilation.

Despite the last-minute entry of Governor William Scranton of Pennsylvania, surveys indicate Barry Goldwater, Arizona senator and right-wing extremist, has enough vote pledges to capture the presidential nomination on the first ballot at the Republican convention opening in San Francisco July 13.

DICTATES POLICY

As the party's candidate, Goldwater would be in a strong position to dictate Republican policy. And though the moderates, especially from such big northern states as New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan and Illinois, would undoubtedly try to restrain him, there are reasons to doubt they would have much success.

One is that Goldwater owes something to those supporting his bid for the nomination. They include members of the extremist John Birch Society, whose leader once accused Eisenhower of being a tool of the Communists.

And helping finance Goldwater's campaigns in the past have been a number of Texas oil millionaires, including some said to have had a hand in distributing literature viciously attacking John F. Kennedy in the 1960 campaign.

Goldwater's own apparent distaste for compromise is also taken as an indication that he'll pay little heed to those trying to get him to moderate party policy.

Car Crash Bill Tops $300 Million

Auto insurance claims in Canada will exceed $300,000,000 this year—more than is being spent throughout the country on constructing new schools.

This figure was estimated by public relations man Dean Miller of Vancouver at a Rotary luncheon on Thursday.

Mr. Miller said that in 1963 10 per cent of all cars in Canada were involved in reportable accidents.

Total of 4,200 persons were killed and 125,000 injured, more than the population of Victoria.

He said many people believed that raising the age limit of learner drivers from 15 to 18 would cut down the number of accidents.

"But if you do this the number of incidents involving illegal driving by young people will quadruple."

Also, he said, 16-year-olds are more amenable to being taught than 15-year-olds.

EISENHOWER

he suspects the U.S. allies and given his party's nomination at the United Nations, that he wants to drive Fidel Castro out of Cuba by force, that the U.S. should seek victory in Southeast Asia even if it raises the threat of world war, and that U.S. foreign aid should be sharply cut.

CUT-WELFARE

At home he would curtail federal government influence, cut welfare payments and make the national old-age pension scheme a voluntary measure even though, experts say, this would bankrupt it. He would give the southern states more power to deal with the Negro and other minority problems and would encourage private enterprise by selling government utility operations.

Critics in both the Democratic and Republican parties regard such policies as retrogressive in favor of an unyielding stand against the extreme. Strategists for

Bi-Lingual Exchange Scholarships

to commemorate the Centennial of Confederation

As a contribution to Canada's one hundredth birthday, The Bank of Nova Scotia is establishing a series of exchange scholarships between French and English language universities and colleges in Canada.

Scotiabank will award six scholarships annually for the next five years, starting with the 1965-66 academic year. Three of these will be available each year to students from English language institutions to study at French language institutions and three for French language students to study at English language institutions.

Undergraduate scholarships will have a value of $1,500, graduate awards $2,500. Any recognized degree course is acceptable as a field of study. Applications will be accepted from undergraduates entering the second-last year of a regular university degree course, provided the application is endorsed by the applicant's university; graduate students will be expected to provide a plan of post-graduate studies.

The Canadian Universities Foundation has agreed to be responsible for the handling of applications, selection of successful candidates, and administration of the program. Full information may be obtained from the Foundation and will be available through university registrars later this year.

We hope that this opportunity for a group of young people to gain an appreciation of another Canadian point of view will make a contribution toward greater understanding at a time when Canada is embarking upon a new century.

Air Crew Officers Retired

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCAF is in the process of compulsorily retiring 486 officer pilots and navigators—10 per cent of its entire aircrrew strength.

Of these 486, a total of 344 were actually engaged on flying duties when notified their services were no longer required. The others were in temporary ground jobs.

Besides the 486 aircrrew, the RCAF is discharging before normal retirement date 33 air traffic controllers and 15 other officers connected with the Ground Observer Corps—34 officers in all.

An air force spokesman said Thursday that the 534 officers became surplus last fall when Defence Minister Hellyer announced a series of defence cuts and on Jan. 1 when the last elements of the Ground Observer Corps were disbanded.

Mr. Hellyer announced last Nov. 5 that RCAF requests for more CF-101 Voodoo jet interceptors and CF-104 low-level jet bombers had been rejected.

A month later he announced closure of the RCAF stations at Vancouver, Calgary, Saskatoon, Hamilton and Torbay, Nfld., and disbandment of auxiliary squadrons at Vancouver, Calgary, Saskatoon and Hamilton.

REDUCING SQUADRONS

Since then the number of Voodoo squadrons has been reduced to three from five and Mr. Hellyer has said that the number of CF-104 squadrons in Europe, now eight, will eventually have to be reduced as well.

Some sources, not confined to the air force or the defence department, said it was a mistake to let go so many experienced aircrrew officers at one time. It costs $85,000 to train a pilot.

The "permanent" commission flight lieutenants and flying officers being released had an average of 19.8 and 23.4 years service, respectively. The short-service commission officers had 7½ to 8½ years flying experience.

Meanwhile, senior RCAF officers now are being retired when no places can be found for them in the integrated command structure at defence headquarters. This applies to the other services, too.

Mr. Hellyer has said he intends to reduce armed forces strength by some 10,000 to approximately 110,000 in the next year or two. This will mean compulsory retirement for some 2,000 servicemen, not including the aircrrew officers now being discharged.

STRIKE VOTE JUNE 30 BY CMS EMPLOYEES

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—A strike vote among 6,000 employees of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company here will be held June 30, the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) announced Thursday.

In a telegram to B.C. Labor Minister Leslie Peterson, the joint bargaining committee of Local 490 at this southeastern B.C. city and Local 651 at Kimberley, about 90 miles east of here, said the membership had rejected a conciliation report.

The report recommended an average wage increase of 28 cents an hour. The union was seeking a raise of about 35 cents an hour and adjustment of overtime and work-week clauses.

Current base pay ranges from $1.97 to $2.85 an hour.

MILLION-DOLLAR CRASH

Train Wreck Brings Four-Year Jail Term

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP)—Henry Linekar, 18, of Foley, Ont., was sentenced Thursday to four years in penitentiary for his part in a $1,000,000 derailment on the CNR's main Toronto-Vancouver line near Foley April 25.

Linekar pleaded guilty to a charge of mischief causing injury by setting a diesel locomotive into motion which crashed head-on into a freight train.

The collision derailed 23 cars, four diesel units, the runaway engine, and ripped up 300 feet of track. About 100 cattle had to be destroyed.

C. H. Woods, 42, of Horneby, the engineer on the eastbound freight, lost a leg and had the other crushed in the crash. Two other crewmen on the freight were also injured as they attempted to jump clear.

The maximum penalty for the original charge is life imprisonment. The maximum penalty for the reduced charge is five years.

TO KEEP WARM

In a signed statement, Linekar confessed he had been drinking during the evening of April 24 and had climbed into the idling cab of the diesel engine to keep warm while drinking wine.

He began to play with the levers and eventually got the engine moving. Finally he lost control and jumped clear. The diesel crashed through a closed switch and moved out onto the main line about 30 miles away.

Three miles west of Foley, 150 miles northwest of here, it met the 60-car freight bound to Montreal from Winnipeg. The freight was travelling at an estimated 52 miles an hour.

... BROUGHT TO YOU IN LIVING COLOR

Victoria's present drab color scheme for parking meter heads, intended to inform motorists instantly of the time zone they're in, may be replaced by more vivid colors to attract attention.

It all depends on a current experiment on Langley Street.

Meter poles now are painted brown, green, silver and turquoise, but the colors are so insipid that they are little noticed.

The experiment uses bright green for two-hour meter zones; blue for one hour; yellow for a half-hour, and red for 12 minutes.

PRIZE-WINNING NEW LYRICS

WOLFWVILLE, N.S. (UPI)—"Our home, our land, our Canada,

"May we forsake thee never,

"But hold on high and proudly fly,

"The maple leaf forever."

That's the first refrain to the new version of The Maple Leaf Forever, which was selected Thursday out of hundreds of entries in a contest sponsored by the Canadian Authors Association.

The association heard the new lyrics at a luncheon at Acadia University as music professor Leonard Mayoh sang out its three verses and two refrains.

Victor Cowley of Ottawa was awarded the contest's first prize of $1,000 which was underwritten by Toronto music publisher Gordon V. Thompson who holds the copyright.

The association decided on a complete change to the Maple Leaf which did not translate happily into the French language.

The new song extols the country's rivers, lakes, mountains, prairies and forests, and only once refers to the Queen.

It does so in the last refrain:

"Our home, our land, our Canada,
"May we forsake thee never,
"God save the Queen and heaven bless,
"The maple leaf forever."

here's the friendly call you hear...

from coast to coast so loud and clear...

Restrictions In Rhodesia Ruled Illegal

BULAWAYO (Reuters)—Judge John Dendy-Young ruled in the high court here today that Negro nationalist leader Joshua Nkomo and others confined to remote areas are being illegally restricted in Southern Rhodesia.

Nkomo and three of his aides, including a woman, were restricted to a remote area for 12 months by the government last April under the Law and Order Maintenance Act.

Earlier this month, Nkomo and 25 members of his people's caretaker council began a civil action in Bulawayo in a bid to set aside the restriction orders.

Nkomo was confined to an area near the Mozambique border where another five of his chief aides also were detained. About 100 other Negroes are held at Wha Wha camp, 100 miles from here.

They asked the high court to rule the orders were illegal and aimed at crushing political opposition.

WILL APPEAL

In the capital of Salisbury, the government announced it would appeal the ruling.

Judge Dendy-Young ruled in the civil action brought against Clifford Dupont, former minister for law and order.

Canada's largest single defence order in the near future is expected to be for a new multi-purpose tactical aircraft for the air force.

"We would be seeking an aircraft appropriate to the needs of the RCAF which could be manufactured in Canada for the RCAF and the U.S. air force," Drury said.

Some of those restricted in the two camps have been held since last February when Dupont ordered the move "to rid the country's African townships of hooligans and thugs."

OPEN HOUSE is scheduled for Saturday at the twin Esquimalt apartments of the Ponderosa, 1184 Esquimalt Road, and its sidekick, Little Joe, 1239 Park Terrace. Completion this week of Little Joe brings to full development the complex started last year with the Ponderosa, largest conventional apartment block built in Victoria area in last two years. Ponderosa contains 64 suites, one and two-bedroom and bachelor. Little Joe consists of 18 suites ranging from bachelor to three-bedroom. Both buildings have music piped into the halls, smart laundry rooms, individual heat control and anti-odor forced-ventilation in the hallways. They were built by their owners, Copp Construction; Mears and Whyte, Oak Bay Realty, general agents.

OTTAWA (CP) — Eric Winkler, Conservative Whip, said today in the Commons that his party will offer its immediate cooperation to Prime Minister Pearson is prepared to present the government's legislation to provide loans for needy university students. Mr. Winkler raised the matter as a question of privilege based on Mr. Pearson's statement Wednesday that Commons debate on such items as the flag and the film "Mr. Pearson" are holding up pension, student loan and family allowance legislation.

Mr. Pearson said he would make a statement next week on legislation plans.

Earlier in the day spokesman for 120,000 university students protested to MPs that they have been kept dangling since last January waiting for the loan

Representatives of the two major political parties blamed each other for the delay.

10-YEAR-OLD RINGS BELL ONCE AGAIN WITH ANDY

A Macauley School pupil for a second time has won a prize for submitting a question to Andy.

Allan Stocks, 10, of 542 Joffre Street, today was awarded a set of World Book Encyclopedia for the question: "Who started daylight saving time?"

Last December he won an Atlas. Allan's 12-year-old brother, Alec, has been even luckier with his questions. He has won all three prizes—a set of World Books, an Atlas and World Globe.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Carol Channing, the girl of the year, gave the party of the year the other morning at Teddy's Restaurant . . . and I don't know how to say this modestly . . . but, well, I shucks . . . I was the guest of honor.

It was a "literary supper" starting at midnight, and at 4 a.m., I was still on my feet, and, according to my B.W., also a lot of other people's.

No, I positively did not get . . . oh . . . out of line.

Nunnally Johnson, the brilliant writer-producer, once told me that after he'd been given a literary party, his child said, "Daddy, you're eyeballs are bleeding."

"The very least you can do to show your appreciation for a party is to have a hangover next day!" he retorted indignantly.

But it didn't seem right to Carol, nor to my little literary outburst, "Earl Wilson's New York" . . . nor to people like Comedian Marty Allen who got rigged up in a Cleopatra wig, a gown, a white mink, and a lizard—instead of an ap— and did an Elizabeth Taylor-type poetry reading.

Richard Burton—and Marty Allen—were the stars of Carol's party. Burton and Liz Taylor arrived about 1 a.m.

Mary snatched off his Cleopatra wig and put it on Burton's head, and Burton laughed and began singing. Liz laughed uproariously.

Marty stood up in his Liz disguise to do his poetry-reading, opened a book, looked at a "poem," then said:

"Oh, hell, this is Burton's bill from the Regency Hotel!"

Then Marty said he'd intended to read a poem he'd written for himself, but that Burton had seen it and insisted on doing it.

Arising at his table, clearing his throat, making a short prefatory speech, Burton then took the "poem" and read as follows:

"Be it ever so humble . . .

There's no place like Rome."

Whereupon the Broadway and Show Biz crowd cheered his sportsmanship. Sophie Tucker sang "Some of These Days" to Carol and the Burtons, and, at one point, said joyously to Burton: "Your French is as bad as mine."

"And your English is as bad as my wife's!" Burton cracked back laughingly.

At the soiree were Carroll Baker, Tammy Grimes, Sally Ann Howes, the Dennis O'Keefes, Toots Shor, Trini Lopez, Lilo, Gov. Sawyer of Nevada, Petachou, Barbara Rush, Sidney Kingsley.

Nipsey Russell came over to me when she finished and said:

EARL'S PEARLS: "Judy Garland Married Twice in Week"—That's a record, even for a Hollywood star!—(Sandu Scott).

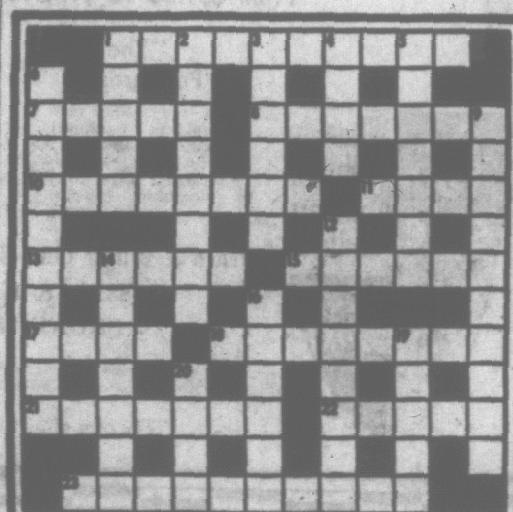

That's earl, brother.

B.C. Fishermen Support Offer

VANCOUVER (CP)—Homer Stevens, secretary of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union (Ind.), Thursday announced the union's negotiating committee has recommended acceptance of all salmon price offers made by the Fisheries Association of B.C.

Mr. Stevens said the net fishermen have yet to vote on the association's offer, but it was expected they would go along with the committee's recommendation.

10 Members Of Gambling Squad Fired

NEW YORK (UPI)—Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy, so angry that his voice shook, Thursday fired 10 policemen and disbanded the anti-gambling squad as a result of a secret grand jury investigation into payoffs by bigtime gamblers.

"We intend to uproot and bring to justice every man involved," Murphy said.

Among the men summarily fired from the force was Lieut. Stanley Koutnik, a leader of the chief inspector's squad which had been responsible for enforcement of gambling laws.

The rest of the squad was ordered transferred to other posts.

Murphy fired the 10 within minutes after chief assistant district attorney Alfred J. Scotti told him the men refused to waive immunity and testify before the grand jury.

MANNING
"disturbing trend"

'Welfare State Concept' Charged

EDMONTON (CP)—The federal government is imbued with welfare state philosophy, Premier Manning said Wednesday in commenting on the Hall royal commission on health services and a recent meeting with federal authorities on Alberta's hospital co-insurance scheme.

On the royal commission, Mr. Manning told a press conference he finds it "most disturbing" that the proposed method of implementing the recommendations is "complete acceptance of the welfare state concept."

"I completely reject and repudiate the suggestion that the only way to have these high standards of medicine is 'by the government paying all the costs without regard to the individual's ability and responsibility."

"This is a premise I simply can't accept. It is fundamentally unsound. If it is accepted, the people of Canada in the future will be faced with taxes and debt charges that would make present charges look like chicken feed."

Mr. Manning said the federal government indicated it did not feel that persons receiving the services should pay some of the cost.

THE FACULTY OF HEARING

The structure of the human ear is often described but a realization of its functioning is of no less importance for it is a delicate device set like a jewel in the protection of the skull. Few people realize that in some respects the ear is ten times more sensitive than the eye! The ear drum when responding to a slight sound moves less than a hundred millionth of an inch! Yet the sound pressure range is from one to five million... from the rustle of a leaf to the whine of a jet!

However we have no "ear-lid" to rest our hearing and excessive noise brings nervous tension and industrial fatigue—continually straining to hear is equally tiring and is relieved only by inattention. (Found noticeably in students and grandfathers).

Take care to preserve your hearing.

We have made "ear-lids" for water-skiers (to protect their eardrums) and ear plugs for apartment dwellers (to protect them from nervous tension) and, of course we carefully prescribe hearing aids to relieve the strain of concentration imposed on the partially deaf.

Professional attention and high quality hearing aids are available in the HBC Hearing Dept., Second Floor.

Sidney's the Place July 1

Lower Vancouver Islanders wishing to take part in Dominion Day celebrations will head to Sidney early Wednesday morning.

Beginning at 10:30 a.m. the one and only major July 1 celebration for this area will start with a parade of floats, costumes and vintage cars.

Arthur Mayse

Vancouver Island Revisited

ALERT BAY—This is the third and final day of the yearly Indian sports carnival held in aid of St. George's Hospital. Last night they kindled fires and fished out the ancient Kwakiutl masks for such dances as the south coast rarely witnesses.

This morning, on a slope so blazoned with yellow brome that it might be lifted from Beacon Hill, the smoke from an enormous salmon barbecue twists into the washed blue sky.

Across a gravel road in the Indian Day School grounds, eight-man teams—whites and Indians hauling together on each—are battling out a stern tug-of-war.

The field swarms with Indians and whites. In the grandstand, 250 children, women and men are crowded so solidly that from a distance the stand looks like a variegated flower garden. Some heads are dark, some red or blond. Of these last, a number belong to Malcolm Islanders who have crossed from the neighboring Finnish community of Sointula.

The women and young ones are wearing bright summer clothes. You see sky-blue stretch pants, white beachcombers, and fire-engine shorts above brown legs. The men's sport shorts come in any shade you care to name. A teen-age pair stroll past, swinging hands, in violently striped matching surters.

Everyone's in holiday mood, including Win, who is being urged to enter the women's tug-of-war, and me with a popcicle in one dripping fist. We are, in fact, having a ball.

This, then, is Alert Bay, the home of the brooding native and the scowling totem pole?

Well, there's a little burial ground down the road past the served docks where the fish-boats ride. Here you'll find totem aplenty. Also, a splendid display of native heraldry flanks the entrance to St. Michael's residential school, sedate in red brick and cream trim upon its hill.

But nobody cares about totems today. Except for the sleepers in the cemetery, the population of Cormorant Island and many a neighboring isle in this land-and-water labyrinth is having fun.

They stayed a boat parade this morning, half a mile of seiners and trollers, their rigging gay with every flag in the locker. The RCMP launch "Alert" headed the marine procession, the school band playing its collective head off on her decks.

(Alfred Scow went to school here once. The Indian boy from Alert Bay moved on to graduate from UBC, and is now a lawyer in Vancouver.)

Ask The Times

A passenger vessel called the City of Kingston once sailed a regular service between Victoria and Seattle. Whatever happened to her?

The City of Kingston collided with an Oriental steamer called the Glenogle, April 23, 1890, in a fog near the entrance to Tacoma harbor.

She was hit amidships and practically cut in two. The force of the collision separated the passenger decks and superstructure from the hull, enabling all passengers to be rescued.

The hull and machinery sank in 210 feet of water.

Q. Is there any freeway or turnpike on the North American continent where the density of auto traffic is regulated by an electric eye or other automatic device? A.E.L.

A. Only use of electronic equipment to regulate traffic flow on freeways is in Detroit, Mich., where it is still in the experimental stages.

All questions should deal with matters of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve controversies or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, autographs, etc. Items should be submitted to a dealer.

Anyone writing a question answered is invited to send the problem along with the question, and answers will be published duly.

The parade, which will start at Queens and Third, will wend its way through the village, finally arriving at Memorial Park at 11:30 a.m.

In the park, Joan Gardner will be crowned Miss Sidney by last year's winner and Miss PNE, Linda Douma.

The afternoon and evening will be filled with amusements for the children, dancing sessions for the young and old and entertainment for all.

A flag day ceremony by the Elks Lodge at 1:30 will be followed by a show presented by Michael Williams and his performing dogs.

Between 2 and 4 p.m., teenagers will dance to the Cavaliers in Sanscha Hall and outside will be a display of square dancing.

Also featured in the afternoon will be Fred Usher and his orchestra and vocalist Terry Cain as they present a dance and variety show. Dancers will be under the direction of Bebe Eversfield.

Then when night falls Fred Usher and his boys will strike up another note for a public dance and floor show.

Charm of Sidewalk Cafe Adds Glamor of Europe

By PENNY SAVER

If you've ever travelled to such romantic spots as Paris or Rome, you'll no doubt know the unmatched glamor of their sidewalk cafes and coffee shops.

But, even if you haven't visited these places, movies and television have probably provided you with an accurate description of what I'm talking about.

And, at last, the charm of such a coffee shop has reached Victoria.

Shop is conveniently located in the downtown section of the city and atmosphere is set with round white tables topped with large open yellow and floral umbrellas.

At present, shop only serves coffee, tea, milk and fruit juices priced at 10 cents each and open-face sandwiches, 30 cents, in their outdoor shop. But, manager assured me that they will soon start serving warm lunches and hot dogs as well.

Specialty of shop is a wide selection of European and "take-home" foods.

Their most popular items are delicious whole barbecued chicken and potato or Italian meat salad. Chicken sells at $1.29, potato salad, 45 cents a pound, and meat salad, 45 cents for a half pound.

Also available is a variety of ready-to-eat smoked meats. These are priced at 44 cents for a quarter pound and make delightful sandwiches when eaten with any one of the rye breads that are made fresh daily.

Try a change of pace from your normal lunch room and dine in Parisian-style sidewalk coffee shop. But, first, call Penny at 352-3131.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

DEAR ABBY . . .

Rely on Your Intuition!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Recently we started seeing a lot of a certain couple. I have always liked them both but we have never been real close friends. For the past few months I have had the feeling that something was going on between this woman and my husband. I have never been jealous before. When I first got that feeling, I told my husband about it. He denied everything and I felt like a heel. I haven't mentioned it since, but I am no fool. All of a sudden she has been planning things for the four of us to do almost every night, and she does favors for me that are uncalled for. I don't like the looks that pass between them or the way they always manage to sit close to each other, or the way they dance together, either. I've never had to cope with this in 20 years of marriage. Should I keep my mouth shut and keep watching or what? My woman's intuition is strong.

NERVOUS WRECK.

DEAR WRECK: Your woman's intuition is probably better than Scotland Yard. Tell your husband in plain language that you are jealous, you sense danger and you have no intention of sharing him or losing him. If he fights too hard to continue the friendship, you will know your suspicions were correct, in which case you had better enlist the help of the other husband.

DEAR ABBY: A few months ago my wife's mother came to live with us. Everything is fine, except when we go out for a ride. I have a two-door automobile. My mother-in-law is 78, and quite large. She al-

The engagement is announced of Norline Mary, daughter of Mrs. Jerome Boone, 1733 Monteith Street, and the late Mr. Boone, to Mr. Vincent Paul Johnson, Terrace, B.C.; son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Johnson of Oliver. The wedding will take place on Saturday, July 4, at noon in St. Patrick's Church, Oak Bay. Fr. M. J. McNamara will officiate. (Photo by Kenneth McAllister.)

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Treat Large Pores With Soap, Water and Brush

(The Question Box
Q. I have large pores. What can I do to get rid of them?

A. The use of soap and water and a complexion brush will help. Use the brush in a rotary motion to stir up circulation. After washing and rinsing your face pat the affected area with an ice cube wrapped in a soft cloth.

After this, dry the face and apply an astringent.

Q. How should I treat hangnails and cracked cuticles?

A. Massage a cuticle oil or cream into the cuticle every night before going to sleep. Also use a hand lotion following every time you have your hands in water. Buy a pair of little hand mitts. Massage your hands and nails with cream, put on gloves and sleep in them all night for a night or so each week.

Q. Is there any way to slim the ankles?

A. This is a difficult spot to reduce since its shape is formed to a great extent by the ankle bones. This is one of the best exercises. Sit on a chair. Lift your left leg forward. Hold the leg in that position while you make circles with your left foot. Circle first in one direction and then the other, making the circles as large and as complete as possible. Do same with right foot.

Q. I am a young mother of two and I would like to know why I get black and blue spots without even bumping myself. My legs and arms always have blue marks on them. What causes this and what can I do to stop it?

A. This condition is sometimes due to fragility of the capillaries, and this can come from vitamin C deficiency or lack of ability on the body's part to handle this vitamin efficiently. "Up" your intake of citrus fruits and juices because of their vitamin C content. Tomatoes and cabbage are also good sources. If this does not remedy the condition, see your doctor for a physical checkup. He may prescribe vitamin C supplements.

Q. Are hormones any good for enlarging the bust. I am thinking of taking some.

A. Hormones might have this effect, but they cannot be purchased without a doctor's prescription and certainly should not be taken for any reason without his consent.

If you would like to have my special abdominal exercises, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for

Rev. and Mrs. E. F. Church

Diamond Anniversary

Cadboro Bay United Church, which he founded in 1958 at the age of 76, will be scene of a baptism ceremony, Sunday when Rev. Edward F. Church will baptize two of his great-grandchildren, Kelly Curtis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Curtis of Victoria, and Robert Fitzsimmons, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Fitzsimmons of Niagara Falls, Ont.

It will herald a round of festivities for Rev. and Mrs. Church. On Monday, they will be marking their diamond wedding anniversary with a reception from 3 to 6 p.m. in their home at 2705 Tudor Road.

The couple's three children have arranged a family dinner for 40 at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel, Sunday evening. The children are Mrs. D. H. (Endi) McCalm, New Westminster; Dr. E. J. M. (Jack) Church, Edmonton, and Mrs. E. M. (Miriam) Taylor, Victoria. There are 10 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Many out-of-town guests will be present to mark the anniversary. They will include Miss Amy B. Church, Smith's Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Church of Renfrew, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hendra-Hickling Vows Exchanged Baskets of pink and white gladioli and pink roses decorated Knox Presbyterian Church when Rev. T. H. McAllister heard marriage vows exchanged between Denise Laura Hickling and Sidney Dennis Hendra.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Hickling, 81

Maddock Avenue West. Groom is the son of Mrs. S. J. Hendra, Edmonton, Alta. Organist was P. Cox.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-skirted ballerina-length gown of white nylon chiffon over peau de soie. Bodice was styled with short sleeves and scoop neckline. Skirt featured panel of soft folds in front. Her short bouffant veil pouffed from a crown of pearls.

Only jewelry was a pearl necklace and earrings and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and white stephanotis.

TURQUOISE AND WHITE

Only attendant, Miss Sharon Wilson, wore a turquoise sheath of chiffon over lace with floral headpiece trimmed with net tone. She completed her ensemble with elbow-length gloves, white satin shoes and pearl earrings. White carnations formed her cascade bouquet.

Best man was Wilf Flack and guests were ushered to pews marked with white bells on satin ribbons by Melvyn Hendra.

A two-tier wedding cake topped with pink roses in a silver bud vase, centred the lace-covered bride's table at a dinner reception that followed in the Glenshiel Hotel. Pink candles in silver holders and arrangements of pink roses completed the decor.

On return from a honeymoon trip to Banff, the couple will make their home at 1350 Hastings Street.

The bride's going away outfit was a light pink wool suit decorated with beaded neckline, deep pink floral hat and gloves, black patent accessories and corsage of pink roses.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. John Hamilton of Campbell River, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cameron of Vancouver.

Many At Graduation

Families and friends gathered on the grounds of Norfolk House School, Thursday afternoon, to attend the school closing, graduation ceremony and presentation of awards.

Rev. Angus Cameron of Llandaff gave the invocation, and Hugh L. Henderson, chairman of the board of governors, opening remarks.

Headmistress, Miss A. Winifred Scott, gave an outline of the activities and programs that had been conducted in the school during the past year.

Following the presentation of prizes by Mrs. R. J. Hobson, graduates were presented to Mrs. David Barlow, president of the Old Girls' Association.

This year's award winners include: General proficiency in kindergarten, Patty-Lou Empsey; grade one, Ivy Drake; grade two, Frances Hubbard; grade three, Judith Snider and Carla Wilson; grade four, Alison Henry; grade five, Mary Ann Bentley; grade six (1), Ann Poulton; (w) Deborah George; grade seven, Caroline Penn; grade eight (p), Elizabeth Grant; (w) Jane Dyer; grade nine (a), Alison Grant; (w) Pat Zeamer; grade 10 (h), Susan Willis; (b), Penny Davis; grade 11, Wendy Watson; and grade 12, Margaret Bowles.

Special prize for French in grade nine was won by Penny Shaw; science, grade eight (p), Linda James; (w) Jane Dyer, and middle school scripture, Helen Ohr.

The couple was married on June 29, 1904, in the little Anderson village church near St. Mary's, Ont. The village is named after Mrs. Church's family.

After his retirement, Rev. Church served interim pastorates in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, Ont.; Central United Church, Stratford, and Alberni United Church.

In addition to starting Cadboro Bay United Church, Rev. Church was also responsible for the formation of Crescent Park United Church, near White Rock, B.C.

Congregation of Cadboro Bay dedicated the church hall to the memory of Rev. Church, naming it the Edward Church Hall.

Rev. Church is 83, and his wife, 84.

19 Graduates
And That Other Fella

Twenty graduates bowed out of Edward Milne Secondary School at Sooke on Thursday—19 students, and the principal, Joseph Jupp, with the school for 11 years and principal for one, is "graduating" into the job of technical and vocational coordinator for the department of education.

With him in the class of '64 were:

William Adams, Vera Banner, Barry Billan, Robert Gibson, Terrance Helgesen, Glenda Hughes, Ronald Jupp, Mary Llewellyn, Linda Marin, Robert Martin, Claudette Parman, a Sharon Roberts, Kathleen Rust, Joyce Schickerowsky, Edward Shaw, John Soutar, Gerhard Van Beers, Brenda Way and Winnie Yde-Ris.

Ronald Jupp is the principal's son.

Speakers at the ceremonies on Thursday evening included the school board chairman, John S.
Williams, and William Grunow, manager of Sooke Forest Productions, Limited.

Cancer Cause
Research Nil

OTTAWA (CP)—A tobacco
grower from southwestern Ontario
said Thursday no research is being conducted in Canada to find the cause of lung cancer—
even though the tobacco industry has been branded by Health Minister Judy LaMarsh
and the Canadian Medical Association with the "skull and crossbones of poison."

M. C. Campbell, secretary of the Burley Tobacco Marketing Association of Ontario, made the statement in a brief to the Commons agriculture committee.

POLARIS SUB

LIVERPOOL, England (Reuter)—The keel of the second British Polaris submarine, to be named Renown, was laid here
Thursday in a ceremony attended by senior British and American naval officers.

The submarine will be equipped with 16 American-made Polaris missiles fitted with British warheads. It should be operational in 1968.

Estimated cost of construction and the missile is about $150,000,000.

Britain plans to have a fleet of five Polaris submarines operational by 1969.

CALL FOR TENDERS

Quilchena and District Recreation Centre invite tenders for the construction of a four-sheet curling rink.
Sealed tenders will be received by the Centre at any time before 12 o'clock noon
P.D.T. July 18, 1964.

Plans and specifications may be obtained at the Village Office, Quilchena
Beach, at any time after July 1, 1964.
Cost of drawings, $5.00.

Lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

O. H. RYE,
Chairman.

PORT ALBERNI
HARBOUR COMMISSION

SEALED TENDERS addressed to Port Alberni Harbour Commission, 1119 West Georgia Street, Vancouver, B.C.
Friday, July 11, 1964.

Dr. Gustav Gingras of Montreal, chairman of the Canadian Medical Association's committee on rehabilitation, used the word amazing when describing the babies' means of exploring their environment.

Dr. Gingras said the babies have developed through all senses available to them—touch, smell and sight. A child could be taught to eat with mechanical limbs at the age of four months where a normal baby did not learn to feed itself until six months.

Angry Judge
Sues Hotel
For $3 Million

DETROIT (AP)—A judge
who staged a sit-in with his family at a New York hotel
last week has brought a $3,000,- 000 suit against the Hilton Hotel Corporation.

Municipal Judge John J. Kade-la of suburban Dearborn, his wife and their four children had to stay in a private dining room at Statler-Hilton Hotel for 24 hours until a room was found for them.

Hotel rooms in New York City have been difficult to obtain because of the influx of World's Fair visitors.

In his circuit court suit filed Tuesday, Kade-la asked that the $3,000,000 be put in trust for all the minor children of Michigan who might receive similar treatment from the hotel firm. Kade-la asked $1 in damages for himself.

The judge asked that Hilton hotels be enjoined from issuing any "confirmed" reservation contracts which are in fact

Election Coming Soon
John D. Warns Party

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

"We have been watching the government go from difficulty to difficulty—all self created."

Mr. Diefenbaker urged Conservatives across the country to work toward "the restoration of strong government in Canada." He said the results of the by-elections in Saskatchewan and Nip-issing were indications of the continuing strength of the Conservative Party.

The Liberals promised the people of Saskatchewan they would have a cabinet minister if they elected the Liberal candidate, he said. "But tainted bait of that kind was not to their liking."

Instead, they elected Mrs.
Elaine Jones, a psychiatrist and doctor who "is coming to parliament if it's still here when she gets here." Mrs. Jones is expected in Ottawa on July 2.

"No one knows what tomorrow will bring. No one knows what trouble the government will get in," he said.

Sixth Search Starts
For Long-Lost Ship

Dr. George Cottrell was to arrive in Victoria today to start his sixth search for the trading vessel Tonquin.

Dr. Cottrell is coming from Portland in his 65-foot yacht Summarie.

The Tonquin was based at Astoria, Ore., in the service of

EXPERT AID

Assisting Dr. Cottrell will be Edward MacFayden, former curator of the Maritime Museum of B.C., Esquimalt, who has spent many hours in research in the archives here.

Mr. MacFayden has been on two unsuccessful expeditions to locate the Tonquin with Dr. Cottrell in the past but they "have a feeling" they will find her this time.

All marine relics gathered as a result of the expedition will be turned over to the local maritime museum.

The expedition will carry all the latest diving equipment including a self-propelled underwater sled.

PERRAULT SAYS:

B.C. Bank
Petitions
'Managed'

Premier W. A. C. Bennett is using a public relations firm and a "front" organization to solicit petitions in favor of the Bank of B.C., Liberal Leader
Ray Perrault charged today.

He said he had a copy of the petition urging Ottawa to grant a charter to the bank, to which is attached a card saying
"Please return to William Clancy and Associates, public relations counsellor, 1030 West Georgia St., Vancouver."

Mr. Perrault said the bank's provisional directors are also soliciting signatures for petitions, which Premier Bennett said were "spontaneous."

'GUN-SHY' GROUP

"Now these efforts are being abetted by a shadow organization known as the B.C. Bank Citizens Committee," Mr. Per-
rault said.

"This gun-shy organization
coyly hides behind the anonymity of a box number, has no telephone contact with the living world and no visible means of support despite its recent advertising program."

PRODUCE LETTERS

Mr. Perrault recalled that Mr.
Bennett told the legislature in March he had "thousands of letters" supporting the idea of the bank front groups."

"If this is so let him produce these thousands of letters before the Senate and Commons and let him forget about petitions fostered by his mushroom front groups."

New Kidneys Transferred

CHICAGO (AP) — A hospital
announced Thursday that a seven-year-old girl has received a transplant of kidneys from a newborn baby in the first apparently successful operation of its kind.

The healthy kidneys were removed from the one-hour-old baby almost immediately after its death from a congenital birth defect.

"But even six days is a success in this kind of operation,"
the spokesman said.

The six-hour operation was performed last Friday at Pas-age Memorial Hospital by a team of seven surgeons. It is thought to be the second time in medical history that an operation using an infant's kidneys was tried. In the first, in Los Angeles a year ago, the patient died after a day.

A spokesman for the hospital
reported the girl in good condition
Thursday but said it will be determined definitely whether she will survive.

"But even six days is a success in this kind of operation,"
the spokesman said.

BLOOD GIVEN

WESTWOOD, N.J. (UPI) — A Jehovah's Witness mother, who lost a court battle against receiving a blood transfusion, was delivered Thursday night of a son by Cesarean section. The woman was given a pint of blood during the delivery despite her objections.

Mrs. Wilmina Anderson, 29, of Asbury Park, and the 3½-pound boy, named Mitchell, were reported in good condition.

Plaque To Honor Sammon

A plaque will be unveiled next week in the front entrance to the Veterans' Hospital in memory of G. K. Sammon, a former Esquimalt councillor.

The ceremony will be conducted Friday at 8 p.m. by hospital chaplain Padre Douglas Kendall and medical superintendent Dr. W. L. Coke.

The plaque will be unveiled by his widow, Mrs. Olive Sammon.

NATIONAL HEAD

Mr. Sammon was a member of Esquimalt council for many years and national president of the association of veterans' affairs employees for 10 years.

He was also a member of the board of directors of St. Joseph's Hospital, chairman of the metro health board and chairman of the inter-municipal committee.

He died in May 1963, while on a trip to England.

Gossipy Letters Help Tell The Story for Island Author

By MARGE GILROY

Nothing can replace the personal letter, filled with gossip and news of the day, when it comes to historical research.

Harry Olsen of Chemainus discovered this as he searched the countryside for material for his book, "Water Over the Wheel."

Mr. Olsen is an accountant by profession and history is his hobby. It was the tales told by his Kansas-born father that sparked his interest in historical events.

that was half fantasy and half reality," he said.

Old-timers remember historical events only as they related to them personally, not the event itself.

Material for his book came from the files of the B.C. Archives, sheriff's letters, and the greatest find of all was a folding desk belonging to John Hubert.

Hubert was the grandson of George Askew, one of the pioneer lumber barons in the area. In the desk were stacks of personal papers and private letters.

But unfortunately, Mr. Olsen said, when you live in the area you write about you can't use some of the more interesting accounts of the day.

"In particular there were some real gems in the Nanaimo police reports," he said.

He has saved them, so some day they may be enclosed behind hard covers.

For three years Mr. Olsen researched, wrote and rewrote the history of Chemainus, with his wife as stenographer, file clerk and critic.

The Chemainus author is two-thirds of the way through his second book, which is an intermingling of fact and fiction, with Indians and half-breeds as the main characters.

He started writing as a hobby when he was a patient in Shaughnessy Hospital, and he intends to keep it as a hobby only.

The Chemainus Historical Society, established as a direct result of Mr. Olsen's writings, is publishing the book.

Thursday night he spoke to the Victoria Historical Society, in Victoria, on Chemainus history between 1853 and 1863.

POLLUTION PROBLEMS

Gov't Planning Shawnigan Building Curbs

By FRANK BUTTER

The provincial government plans tighter building restrictions at Shawnigan Lake because of concern about water pollution.

Residents of the area say septic tanks below the high water line are contaminating the lake.

The lake supplies a community of about 1,000 people with water.

Central Vancouver Island Health Unit has been conducting an investigation for some time into complaints.

But health officials can't do much unless there is evidence of disease as a result of water pollution.

PLANNING AREA

The department has filed notice to residents that it intends to create a community planning area in Shawnigan Lake.

By doing this, it can send inspectors to the area to check on new and existing septic tanks.

In addition the department could regulate new building in the community.

The department has invited residents to give their opinion on the idea before declaring the planning area.

Travel Restricted In Nimpkish Valley

CAMPBELL RIVER — Access to the Nimpkish Valley area is on a restricted basis effective immediately.

Wide publicity about the "opening up" of the beautiful timber area, thought to be premature by a number of logging company executives, has resulted in an influx of tourists,

Until further notice, no permits will be issued to enter the valley through the Okiwach gate, outside Vernon camp, except on the following basis:

Gate will only be open from 6 p.m. Fridays until midnight Sundays, permits to be issued to those visitors who will be able to get in and out between these hours on a weekend, or who are prepared to come in one weekend and out the next.

Travelers who can produce a letter from CFP Ltd. head office in Vancouver giving permission to enter the claim during the week.

Tourists, travelers or sightseers who wish to drive to Port McNeill, Port Alice, Port Hardy or other northern points during the week and who arrive at the gate without a letter, will be turned back.

A spokesman for CFP said negotiations are under way between his company and Elk River Timber Co. and Tahsis Co. to allow access on weekdays from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. However, he said such a move will depend on co-operation of the public in observing access regulations.

STATUS CHANGE ORDERED

Knee-Pant Stage Fading As Campbell R. Grows Up

Campbell River has grown up and must don adult status, the provincial government says.

The village must become either a town or a district municipality by next Jan. 1.

The Municipal Act decrees that the change must come when a village tops 2,500 population.

Two Injured In Collision

LADYSMITH — A Victorian is one of two men injured in a car crash early today on the Trans-Canada Highway, one mile north of here at Ivy Green Park.

Lewis A. Vanhecke, 2115 Wilkinson Road, and Alan Hawthorne of North Surrey, both drivers, are reported in good condition in hospital here.

It is believed one car pulled out of the park and was struck by the other travelling north.

Police said both cars are total wrecks.

CHIEF BIOLOGIST of the recreation and conservation department, fish and game branch, Donald Robinson, has been appointed assistant branch director. He is a native of Nanaimo and joined the game branch in 1951 after graduating from the University of B.C. in zoology.

Campbell River now has about 3,700 residents.

SIX MONTHS

Deputy municipal affairs minister J. Everett Brown has written village council giving six months notice of the change.

The advantages, a provincial official said, will include double borrowing powers.

One of the disadvantages will be that the area will have to form its own assessment department.

AT COST

Provincial assessors will prepare 1965 figures at no cost to the village to help out.

Council has already launched a study of the possibility of creating a municipality including the village, North Campbell River and Willow Point.

The provincial official said council can choose itself which it would prefer—a town or district municipality—but the decision must be made by next Jan. 1.

RATE BOOST STUDIED BY CHAMBER

DUNCAN — Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce has asked the B.C. Public Utilities Commission for full information on an application by transport firms for freight rate boosts on Vancouver Island.

The chamber was told the new rates are to become effective July 1. Director Archie Stevenson said the increases would impose additional hardships on farmers.

Chamber members also voted to refer the matter to the Associated Chambers of Commerce of B.C. for possible action.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Narin Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Narin Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slender. Note how quickly blood disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Canadian Climbers Eye Pakistan Peaks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A Canadian mountaineering expedition has emerged unscathed from an early misadventure in the Karakorum Mountains of West Pakistan and has been making exploratory climbs in unmapped country near the Chinese frontier.

A report written June 10 by expedition leader Fred Roots said the party of eight Canadians and two Pakistanis had established base camp and was exploring the area to locate the official objective, uncharted Hachindar Kish.

Dr. Roots, 41-year-old geologist from Wakefield, Que., reported the expedition was in good spirits after rescuing Capt. Alikart Hussain, the Pakistani liaison officer, from a precarious mountainside trap and despite a dispute with porters over wages. The weather was good.

The expedition, camped 12,000 feet above sea level beside a glacier in semi-autonomous Hunza state, ran into trouble while packing supplies up the Hasanabad Valley from Aliabad, the nearest community to base camp some 200 miles north of Rawalpindi.

TRIED SHORT-CUT

On one return trip to Aliabad for supplies, Capt. Hussain and Montreal physician Karl Tomm, 25, decided to try a short-cut by climbing over the ridge of an intervening mountain, unaware that other members of the party had investigated the route and found it impractical.

Capt. Hussain and Dr. Tomm got involved in dangerous climbing on steep, loose rock and the Pakistani officer eventually was worked into an impossible position straddling a projecting boulder. He was forced to sit with his back against a vertical wall and his feet dangling in space. His hand had been hurt by a falling stone.

Dr. Tomm managed to get over the ridge and eventually reached Aliabad about eight hours later. A rescue party set out immediately and camped in darkness below Capt. Hussain, shining lights and shouting to let him know help was near.

At dawn a group climbed up with ropes and helped Capt. Hussain down after 17 hours alone without food or drink or the possibility of relaxing or shifting his position.

SLAUGHTERED SHEEP

"True to Moslem custom, a sheep was slaughtered in thanksgiving for the safe return of the captain," Dr. Roots wrote. "Its carcass was given to a needy family in Aliabad."

Dr. Roots described the dispute with the porters as a customary development in Asian mountaineering.

Fifty regular porters, some barefoot, shifted the bulk of supplies and equipment from Aliabad to the base camp in a three-day trek that was completed June 6 during a six-inch fall of snow that soon melted. Four special high-altitude porters and the main party packed supplies from a temporary camp that had been established about eight miles north of Aliabad.

Some of the porters demanded what amounted to double the wages that had been agreed before they set out. Despite the efforts of liaison officer Hussain, all but one porter refused to accept any money and returned to Aliabad to put their case before the representative of the mir (ruler) of Hunza. The expedition, financed entirely by its members, must abide by the ultimate decision of the mir's representative.

UNCONQUERED PEAKS

Once base camp was established, climbers began reconnoitering sorties in an effort to identify and find the best method of attacking Hachindar Kish, whose position and height are not recorded although it is known to be about 23,000 feet high.

The base camp, set up on a small sandy plain in the deep Muchiuloh Glacier valley, is surrounded by a dozen separate peaks 20,000 feet or more high. Dr. Roots reported. Only one of the dozen, 23,540-foot Batura, has been surveyed and none have been climbed.

Dr. Tomm and deputy leader Robert Lyon, 27-year-old Powell River schoolteacher, completed a three-day reconnaissance as Dr. Roots was writing his report and found that a promising glacier basin was unsuitable for launching a climb.

Geologists John Ricker, 26, of Nanaimo, and Carlisle Irwin, 27, of Calgary, explored another branch of the valley and found it came to a dead end, enclosed by cliffs 7,000 feet high with no breaks and completely ringed by hanging glaciers that send several avalanches an hour sweeping across the unprotected valley floor.

WON'T BE EASY

Dr. Roots and engineer Donald Poole, 26, of Courtenay, achieved the expedition's first summit June 9—a snow-topped

POOLE makes first ascent spur projecting from the Batura which the report says "offered exposed and fairly difficult rock climbing and some delicate traverses across exceedingly steep snow slopes that were ready to avalanche over the cliffs below."

Toronto aircraft engineer Hermann Janek, 34, the expedition photographer, and Montreal physician Abdul Khalifa, 34, senior medical officer, have been out photographing what Dr. Roots calls "the incomparable scenery and the awesome avalanches" as well as "the joys of climbing."

Dr. Roots concluded after four days at base camp that a climb in the area will demand "every bit of skill, experience and determination that the party can muster." He adds:

"The expedition did not spend four years in preparation and travel 15,000 miles to find hills that could be walked up easily. Now we are in a country that really demands a full-scale, experienced expedition."

"And we are very happy."

Services' College-Grads Quit

OTTAWA (CP) — Members of the Commons defence committee complained Thursday that too many young men are getting a free university education from the defence department without any intention of staying in the armed forces.

Mr. Armstrong indicated the defence department will announce soon that the obligatory service period after graduation will be raised to five years.

David Groos (L—Victoria), a former naval captain, said the great majority of students whose education is paid for by the defence department are not strongly motivated toward a service career.

Douglas Harkness, former Conservative defence minister, said some graduates say openly they joined only for a free university education and have no intention of staying beyond the required three years.

He said those along for the free ride should be weeded out early and that the obligatory term of service should be five years.

Commodore Harold Groos, director of the Regular Officer Training Plan and a brother of the committee member, said the department wants to weed out those who are looking only for a free education.

Mr. Groos said the wastage rate is very high and that the department is tackling the problem in an unbusinesslike way.

Mr. Armstrong said in reply to Grant Deachman (L—Vancouver Quadra) that the cost per graduate at a service college is $36,000 compared with $16,000 at a civilian university.

He said 48 per cent of graduates who join the navy leave after three years' required service. He did not give the percentages for the army and RCAF.

At the start of the 1963 academic year, there were 976 officer cadets at civilian universities and 1,102 in the service colleges.

The defence department pays tuition and other fees and for books. Each cadet receives $138 a month pay and allowances from the department.

Mr. Groos said the armed forces end up with only 30 per cent of the original college entrants.

Dutch ESP Starts New Dig Into 1930 U.S. Mystery

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — A power shovel is digging up a grass-covered roadside in the slim hope of finding a clue in one of the most celebrated mysteries.

Westchester County authorities are searching for the remains of Justice Joseph Force Crater of the state supreme court. On a hot August evening in 1930, Judge Crater, 41, drove away from a Manhattan hotel and was never seen again.

The digging, under the direction of Sheriff John E. Hoy, is only two miles from a Yonkers yard where a similar operation proved fruitless five years ago.

The current search, like the one in 1959, came about at the suggestion of the same Dutch clairvoyant who claims his extrasensory perception led him to both locations.

After no clues to the Judge Crater mystery were uncovered in the first excavation, the clairvoyant, Gerard Croiset, brooded in Holland about his failure. Until last week he had never been to the United States.

He based his 1959 claim on emotions he said he felt thousands of miles across the sea from Yonkers, a city just north of New York city.

On his recent arrival in connection with a book to be published in New York on his life, Croiset opened the search again by announcing he had visited a roadside location that came to him through an impulse in Holland and had felt a sensation that told him the body had been disinterred from the yard before the 1959 excavation and reburied.

Thursday uncovered the old road and the digging continued.

So far, a trench 75 feet long and 2½ feet deep has been dug without the slightest sign of what might be human bones or any other clue.

Sheriff Hoy, who claims he does not believe in extrasensory perception, said he was digging at the request of New York City police.

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is drawing the line in Southeast Asia at a time when Communist China's ability to fight a major modern war is in a tailspin.

China's air force is short of spare parts and needs new planes to replace a jet fleet that is largely of Korean War vintage.

Her army, huge in manpower, is strapped for up-to-date tanks and short on artillery.

There are serious scarcities of fuel to run the planes, tanks and vehicles that China does have. It is reported pilot training has had to be limited to conserve aviation fuel.

Red China's military deterioration set in about four years ago when the growing ideological dispute with Russia led the Soviet Union to shun off supplies and technical help to China.

One effect of this has been to set back the day when China can explode her first atom bomb.

The Russian-Chinese split seemingly has deepened and the prospect that the Soviet Union will resume arming China is considered remote.

Moreover, the feud between the two huge Communist countries has stretched China's military resources. She has moved sizable forces within reach of her long border with Russia.

U.S. officials regard as significant Russia's recent warning to Red China that she should no longer count on Russia's backing in a crisis.

Some high officials believe this Russian action was a direct result of repeated U.S. warnings that it is ready to risk war with China to keep Southeast Asia from falling under Communist domination.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara has said it will be "many, many years" before

Red China is a first-class power.

This evaluation, based on solid intelligence information, is a main underpinning for the new U.S. "hard line" toward China.

There is an awareness that China could feel forced to call the U.S. hand.

She could, as she did in Korea, send hordes of men rolling southward into Southeast Asia.

If there is one resource China has in abundance, it is manpower. She showed in Korea she is willing to spend it.

But the United States has no

intention of getting into a ground war with China unless there is no other way out.

What the U.S. would do, officials have indicated in private, is to apply its massive air power. China's air force would be virtually helpless to halt such an assault.

If China infiltrated the jungles of Laos and Viet Nam in a guerrilla offensive on a big scale, it would be hard to halt such a surge on the ground.

But U.S. aircraft could be expected to hit hard at the sources of supply and reinforcement in China, at highways and railways, if necessary at industrial centres and bases deeper in the country.

U.S. intelligence has pinned a series of military bases and a vast network of roads and railways radiating from South China's Yunnan province toward North Viet Nam and Burma.

Some senior U.S. military men long have advocated hitting at bases and transportation facilities in south China and North Viet Nam to choke off supplies to the Communist guerrillas infesting Laos and South Viet Nam.

Although short on major modern military hardware, the Chinese have plenty of small arms and ammunition—and this is the sort of thing they take to support guerrilla operations.

Available U.S. marine and army strength in the western Pacific is too thin to undertake a major, sustained ground war.

But the U.S. aces in the game are nearly 3,000 military planes in the Pacific, plus the 125 ships of the 7th Fleet ranged along the Asian coast.

U.S. warplanes—most of them faster, more manoeuvrable and heavily armed than the Chinese—can strike at China from bases on Okinawa, Formosa, ...

Screaming Whites In Attack

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) — Governor Farris Bryant flew to St. Augustine today for an on-the-scene inspection of a racial revolt reaching a new height of violence.

A screaming mob of hundreds of whites attacked civil rights marchers Thursday night and the integration leader, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., said only the refusal of Negroes to retaliate "saved the city from a bloody night of terror."

In flying to St. Augustine, Bryant bypassed a federal court hearing at Jacksonville, where he had been ordered to appear to show cause why he should not be held in contempt. Federal Judge Bryan Simpson had issued the order after Bryant placed a ban on night demonstrations at St. Augustine. The judge had held previously that such a ban violated freedom of speech and assembly.

20 UNDER ARREST

About 30 persons were treated or examined at a hospital, and one was admitted for a rib fracture, after Thursday night's assaults on the marchers. Two Negroes and eight whites were arrested.

King said he appealed to the White House for help at the height of Thursday night's melee and was assured the matter would be investigated. He frequently has called for federal marshals' protection.

For the first time in three weeks of almost daily confrontations, state police were openly threatened. On at least two occasions

VICTORIA'S new $1,347,000 YM-YWCA building was officially launched today with laying of cor-

nerstones by Lieutenant-Governor Pearce, assisted by S. J. Culiffe, chairman of building committee.

New Y's Cornerstone Laid

By NORMAN CRIBBINS

In the shadow of Christ Church Cathedral, Lieutenant-Governor George Pearce today laid the cornerstone of Victoria's new $1,347,000 YM-YWCA building in the Cathedral Hill precinct.

FLAGS AFLUTTER

The Union Jack, the Red Ensign and the British Columbia flag fluttered in a stiff breeze as Mr. Pearce laid the foundation stone on the Broughton Street side of a site stretching to Courtney.

"I declare this stone well and truly laid," he said.

Mrs. Pearce with Hugh R. Stephen, chairman of the campaign; Mrs. K. O. Wright, president of Victoria YM-YWCA; and representatives of the B.C. government, the city council and the municipalities watched the ceremony from a flower-decked dais.

TRIBUTE TO ZEAL

Mrs. Wright referred to the new building—scheduled for completion in May next year—as a tribute to the "zeal, enthusiasm and accomplishment" of Mr. Stephen and his dedicated co-workers.

Mr. Stephen expressed thanks to them and to Stuart Keate, chairman of the national corporations division of the appeal and former publisher of the Victoria Times.

The bright red uniforms of the RCMP band from Ottawa, now touring British Columbia, added a splash of color to the ceremony, which was watched by several hundred spectators.

"The primary votes do not indicate many millions of Americans favor Goldwater," Kennedy told a press conference. "He lost in New Hampshire and Oregon. He won in California but was running only against Governor (Nelson A.) Rockefeller, who had problems involving his personal life."

"That does not indicate widespread support. All of the polls show that Goldwater is not so popular, that he has disadvantages and difficulties to reckon with."

The attorney-general said there is a history of mistrust of the central government in the United States and that any candidate who opposes it will find some followers.

Kennedy will unveil a memorial plaque in the square before the city hall, which has been renamed John F. Kennedy Platz.

GOLDWATER BELITTLED BY KENNEDY IN BERLIN

By NORMAN CRIBBINS

BERLIN (AP)—U.S. Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy said today Senator Barry Goldwater, Republican presidential hopeful, does not enjoy widespread public support in the United States.

Kennedy belittled Goldwater's popularity during a visit to Berlin to commemorate the first anniversary of his late brother's triumphant tour here.

Tens of thousands of Berliners lined the streets to cheer and wave to the attorney-general.

The conclusion that Goldwater has widespread public support in the United States is erroneous," Kennedy said at a press conference.

GRAND PARADE STARTS AT 10:30

Sidney's the Place July 1

Lower Vancouver Islanders wishing to take part in Dominion Day celebrations will head to Sidney early Wednesday morning.

Beginning at 10:30 a.m. the one and only major July 1 celebration for this area will start with a parade of floats, costumes and vintage cars.

ALERT BAY—This is the third and final day of the yearly Indian sports carnival held in aid of St. George's Hospital. Last night they kindled fires and fetched out the ancient Kwakiutl masks for such dances as the south coast rarely witnesses.

This morning, on a slope so blazoned with yellow broom that it might be lifted from Beacon Hill, the smoke from an enormous salmon barbecue twists into the washed blue sky.

Across a gravel road in the Indian Day School grounds, eight-man teams—whites and Indians hauling together on each—are battling out a stern tug-of-war.

The field swarms with Indians and whites. In the grandstand, 250 children, women and men are crowded so solidly that from a distance the stand looks like a variegated flower garden. Some heads are dark, some red or blond. Of these last, a number belong to Malcolm Islanders who have crossed from the neighboring Finian community of Sointula.

The women and young ones are wearing bright summer clothes. You see sky-blue stretch pants, white beachcombers, and fire-engine shorts above brown legs. The men's sport shorts come in any shade you care to name. A teen-age pair stroll past, swinging hands, in violently striped matching suits.

Everyone's in holiday mood, including Win, who is being urged to enter the women's tug-of-war, and me with a popsicle in one dripping fist. We are, in fact, having a ball.

This, then, is Alert Bay, the home of the brooding native and the scowling totem pole?

Well, there's a little burial ground down the road past the sereid docks where the fish-boats ride. Here you'll find totema plenty. Also, a splendid display of native heraldry flanks the entrance to St. Michael's residential school, sedate in red brick and cream trim upon its hill.

But nobody cares about totema today. Except for the sleepers in the cemetery, the population of Cormorant Island and many a neighboring isle in this land-of-water labyrinth is having fun.

They staged a boat parade this morning, half a mile of seiners and trollers, their rigging gay with every flag in the locker. The RCMP launch "Alert" headed the marine procession, the school band playing its collective head off on her decks.

Ask The Times

Q. A passenger vessel called the City of Kingston once sailed a regular service between Victoria and Seattle. Whatever happened to her? (B.C. (Nanaimo).)

A. The City of Kingston collided with an Oriental steamer called the Glenogle, April 23, 1890, in a fog near the entrance to Tacoma harbor.

She was hit amidships and practically cut in two. The force of the collision separated the passenger decks and superstructure from the hull, enabling all passengers to be rescued.

The hull and machinery sank in 210 feet of water.

Q. Is there any freeway or turnpike on the North American Continent where the density of auto traffic is regulated by an electric eye or other automatic device? A.E.L.

A. Only use of electronic equipment to regulate traffic flow on freeways is in Detroit, Mich., where it is still in the experimental stages.

Along the waterfront, the taxis zip to and fro. Alert Bay, with its 50-50 Indian and white population of 1,500, now boasts eight miles of road. For each mile, I'm sure there must be at least a dozen taxis.

The fare appears to be a standard four-bits, and everyone who can crowd into one of these ceaselessly-plying hacks does so with cheerful abandon.

"Come on, come on! Lots of room; we only got eight of them here!"

So we pile in and roll down the line to Mrs. Emma Kenmuir's neat house with the B.C. Airlines office at the front.

Mrs. Kenmuir has a chiselled grey hair and a fine, gentle face. She was born in Alert Bay in 1896, her mother and storekeeper rather lived here before her.

She has been local agent for one airline or another these many years.

A job, she explains, was necessary: at the age of 33, she found herself a widow with two little girls to bring up.

One daughter is now matron of a Victoria private hospital. The other is supervising councillor of a Fraser Valley school board.

Emma Kenmuir tells us about the residential school administered by the Anglican Church and supported in part by the federal government.

It has room for 200 Indian children, but present occupancy is down to 180. Pupils are brought here from isolated corners of the upcoast, sometimes even from the Queen Charlottes. Many arrive with scarce a word of English, bewildered by their first contact with the world outside their village.

A pilot drops in, and here's a face from home. It's Bill Cove, over from his Nimpkish base. His first job was as a copy boy for a Victoria paper called the Colonial, or perhaps the Coloniser . . . didn't quite catch the name.

Bill Cove got his wings with Victoria Flying Club, joined the airline five years ago, and married to a Victoria girl. They now have a 14-month-old son, are hoping for a daughter in July.

We'd like to return to the sports for some barbecued sockeye, and Win is sorry to disappoint the tug-of-war skipper Joe Jarvis.

But we have a plane waiting below, one float removed from the United Church mission Cesma, and the tough old Waco in which Dr. Harold J. Pickup, St. George's flying medico, had fetched many an upcoast casualty to hospital.

One last vignette, smiled over as we taxied back through a town which is rough, tough and hard-drinking. Lord knows, but could drink to a city lesson in plain human kindness.

Mrs. McGregor was a prominent member of the Women's Canadian Club.

Funeral arrangements will be announced early next week.

Surviving are sons Maurice, Bruce and Ray; a daughter, Mrs. Doreen Sweeting; and grandchildren.

He will stand trial July 3 on the charge of criminal negligence.

Two tiny boys, one native, one white, stand hand in hand in segregated innocence. Between them, stalks an even smaller Indian boy, playing at Indian in a brilliant cardboard-and-turkey-feather war bonnet.

Bill, who makes a daily living as a used car salesman, is satisfied that half a loaf of bread is better than no bread—or to put it another way, half a $1.10 consolation prize is better than being $1.62 in the hole.

On the basis of his first moneymaking dream, Bill and his buddy Jim Coulter—who also toils at Morrison's used car lot—invested in an Irish Sweepstakes ticket.

They drew a horse, Baldric II, but the horse was promptly withdrawn by the owners, leaving them naught but a trifling consolation prize to split, instead of $150,000 top money.

"I had this goofy dream," says Bill.

Bill, who makes a daily living as a used car salesman, is satisfied that half a loaf of bread is better than no bread—or to put it another way, half a $1.10 consolation prize is better than being $1.62 in the hole.

On the basis of his first moneymaking dream, Bill and his buddy Jim Coulter—who also toils at Morrison's used car lot—invested in an Irish Sweepstakes ticket.

They drew a horse, Baldric II, but the horse was promptly withdrawn by the owners, leaving them naught but a trifling consolation prize to split, instead of $150,000 top money.

A flag day ceremony by the Elks Lodge at 1:30 will be followed by a show presented by Michael Williams and his performing dogs.

Between 2 and 4 p.m., teenagers will dance to the Cavaliers in Sanscha Hall and outside will be a display of square dancing.

Also featured in the afternoon will be Fred Usher and his orchestra and vocalist Terry Cain as they present a dance and variety show. Dancers will be under the direction of Bebe Eversfield.

Then when night falls Fred Usher and his boys will strike up another note for a public dance and floor show.

Along the waterfront, the taxis zip to and fro. Alert Bay, with its 50-50 Indian and white population of 1,500, now boasts eight miles of road. For each mile, I'm sure there must be at least a dozen taxis.

The fare appears to be a standard four-bits, and everyone who can crowd into one of these ceaselessly-plying hacks does so with cheerful abandon.

"Come on, come on! Lots of room; we only got eight of them here!"

So we pile in and roll down the line to Mrs. Emma Kenmuir's neat house with the B.C. Airlines office at the front.

Mrs. Kenmuir has a chiselled grey hair and a fine, gentle face. She was born in Alert Bay in 1896, her mother and storekeeper rather lived here before her.

She has been local agent for one airline or another these many years.

A job, she explains, was necessary: at the age of 33, she found herself a widow with two little girls to bring up.

One daughter is now matron of a Victoria private hospital. The other is supervising councillor of a Fraser Valley school board.

Emma Kenmuir tells us about the residential school administered by the Anglican Church and supported in part by the federal government.

It has room for 200 Indian children, but present occupancy is down to 180. Pupils are brought here from isolated corners of the upcoast, sometimes even from the Queen Charlottes. Many arrive with scarce a word of English, bewildered by their first contact with the world outside their village.

A pilot drops in, and here's a face from home. It's Bill Cove, over from his Nimpkish base. His first job was as a copy boy for a Victoria paper called the Colonial, or perhaps the Coloniser . . . didn't quite catch the name.

Bill Cove got his wings with Victoria Flying Club, joined the airline five years ago, and married to a Victoria girl. They now have a 14-month-old son, are hoping for a daughter in July.

We'd like to return to the sports for some barbecued sockeye, and Win is sorry to disappoint the tug-of-war skipper Joe Jarvis.

But we have a plane waiting below, one float removed from the United Church mission Cesma, and the tough old Waco in which Dr. Harold J. Pickup, St. George's flying medico, had fetched many an upcoast casualty to hospital.

One last vignette, smiled over as we taxied back through a town which is rough, tough and hard-drinking. Lord knows, but could drink to a city lesson in plain human kindness.

Mrs. McGregor was a prominent member of the Women's Canadian Club.

Funeral arrangements will be announced early next week.

Surviving are sons Maurice, Bruce and Ray; a daughter, Mrs. Doreen Sweeting; and grandchildren.

He will stand trial July 3 on the charge of criminal negligence.

Two tiny boys, one native, one white, stand hand in hand in segregated innocence. Between them, stalks an even smaller Indian boy, playing at Indian in a brilliant cardboard-and-turkey-feather war bonnet.

Research Nil

OTTAWA (CP)—A tobacco
grower from southwestern Ontario
said Thursday no research is being conducted in Canada to find the cause of lung cancer—
even though the tobacco industry has been branded by Health Minister Judy LaMarsh
and the Canadian Medical Association with "the skull and
crossbones of poison."

M. C. Campbell, secretary of the Burley Tobacco Marketing
Association of Ontario, made the statement in a brief to the

POLARIS SUB

LIVERPOOL, England (Reuters)—The keel of the second British Polaris submarine, to be named Renown, was laid here
Thursday in a ceremony attended by senior British and American naval officers.

The submarine will be equipped with 16 American-made Polaris missiles fitted with British warheads. It should be operational in 1968.

Estimated cost of construction and the missiles is about $150,000,000.

Britain plans to have a fleet
of five Polaris submarines operational by 1969.

CALL FOR TENDERS

Qualicum and District Recreation Centre invite tenders for the construction of a new swimming pool. Sealed tenders will be received by the undersigned before 12 o'clock noon
P.D.T. July 31, 1964.

Plans and specifications may be obtained at the Village Office, Qualicum Beach, at any time after July 1, 1964,
for the purchase price of $5.00.

Lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

O. H. RYE,
Chairman.

SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 65
(COWICHAN)

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

SEALED TENDERS marked "Tender for Kokilah Elementary School Addition" are invited by the Board of Education for the construction of two classrooms and an activity room to the Kokilah Elementary School. The completion date of this project is to be August 31, 1964.

Working drawings, specifications, instructions to bidders and form of tender may be obtained by general contractors only from the school board office, James Street, Duncan, on payment of a deposit. Two tenders will be submitted for each set of working drawings and specifications which will be returned on receipt of said documents.

A certified cheque in the amount of 10 per cent of the contract price, or a bid bond in the amount of 10 per cent of the contract price, must accompany all tenders. A surety bond will bind the tenderer in the amount of 10 per cent of the contract price to be provided within fourteen days of the award of the contract. This bond shall be approved by the Board of Education and made out to School District No. 65 (Cowichan), as owner.

If the tenderer defaults in executing the contract within 60 days of the following the date of writing of the award of the contract then said certified cheque will become the property of the Board of Education, School District No. 65 (Cowichan).

Tenders must be in the hands of the undersigned by 2:00 p.m. on July 31, 1964. Lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted and the Board of School Trustees reserves the right to accept or reject any tender without explanation. No tender will be considered having any qualifying clauses whatsoever.

Angry Judge
Sues Hotel
For $3 Million

DETROIT (AP)—A judge
who staged a sit-in with his family at a New York hotel
last week has brought a $3,000,- 000 suit against the Hilton Hotel Corporation.

Municipal Judge John J. Kade
of suburban Dearborn, his wife and their four children
had to stay in a private dining room at Statler-Hilton Hotel for 24 hours until a room was found for them.

Hotel rooms in New York
City have been difficult to obtain because of the influx of World's Fair visitors.

In his circuit court suit filed Tuesday, Kade asked that the
$3,000,000 be put in trust
for all the minor children of Michigan who might receive similar treatment from the hotel firm. Kade asked $1 in damages for himself.

John D. Warns Party

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Opposition leader
John Diefenbaker warned Conservative Party members here Wednesday night that another federal election might be called at any time.

The Liberal minority government is "showing indications of a determination to call an election," he said in a speech to members of the Ottawa west Conservative Association.

He called on his party supporters to prepare for such an eventuality. "You can't say when an election will come, but the way the prime minister is working now it could be anytime."

"No one knows what tomorrow will bring. No one knows what trouble the government will get in," he said.

"We have been watching the government go from difficulty to difficulty—all self-created."

Mr. Diefenbaker urged Conservatives across the country to work toward "the restoration of a strong government in Canada." He said the results of the by-elections in Saskatoon and Nip-issing were indications of the continuing strength of the Conservative Association.

The Liberals promised the people of Saskatoon they would have a cabinet minister if they elected the Liberal candidate, that kind was not to their liking."

Instead they elected Mrs.
Elsie Jones, a psychiatrist and doctor who "is coming to parliament if it's still here when she gets here." Mrs. Jones is expected in Ottawa on July 2.

PERRAULT SAYS:

B.C. Bank
Petitions
'Managed'

Premier W. A. C. Bennett is using a public relations firm and a "front" organization to solicit petitions in favor of the B.C. Liberal Leader Ray Perrault charged today.

He said he had a copy of the petition urging Ottawa to grant a charter to the bank, to which is attached a card saying
"Please return to William Clancy and Associates, public relations counse1, 1030 West
Georgia St., Vancouver."

Mr. Perrault said the bank's provisional directors are also soliciting signatures for petitions, which Premier Bennett said were "spontaneous."

'GUN-SHY' GROUP

"Now these efforts are being abetted by a shadowy organization known as the B.C. Bank Citizens Committee," Mr. Per-
rault said.

"This gun-shy organization
coyly hides behind the anonymity of a box number, has no telephone contact with the living
world and no visible means of support despite its recent advertising program."

PRODUCE LETTERS

Mr. Perrault recalled that Mr.
Bennett told the legislature in March he had "thousands of letters" supporting the idea of the bank.

"If this is so let him produce
these thousands of letters before the Senate and Commons and let him forget about petitions fostered by his mushroom front groups."

New Kidneys Transferred

CHICAGO (AP)—A hospital
announced Thursday that a seven-year-old girl has received a transplant of kidneys from a newborn baby in the first apparently successful operation of
its kind.

A spokesman for the hospital
reported the girl in good condition
Thursday but said it will be a year before it can be determined definitely whether she
will survive.

The six-hour operation was performed last Friday at Passavan Memorial Hospital by a team of seven surgeons. It is thought to be the second time

in medical history that an operation using an infant's kidneys was tried. In the first, in Los Angeles a year ago, the patient died after a day.

A spokesman for the hospital
reported the girl in good condition
Thursday but said it will be
a year before it can be determined definitely whether she
will survive.

"But even six days is a success in this kind of operation,"
the spokesman said.

BARE BOSOMS POP OUT ALL OVER THE WORLD

The topless bathing suit for women is getting more exposure around the world. Also the bare-breast evening gown.

Latest reports from the bare frontier:

London — Bikinis without the tops made their television debut on the British Broadcasting Corporation. Two teen-age girls, whose names were withheld, frolicked on a beach in puritanical Wales.

Only rear shots were shown, and the father of one of the girls claimed they were wearing bras held up by a colorless tape. But BBC said it had film to prove the girls were braless.

GALE AND SNIPPER REUNITED

(Times News Services)

HOLLYWOOD — Gale Gilmore walked to a Sunset Strip mailbox Thursday with a package to mail in one hand and her black-and-white mongrel puppy, Snipper, in the other.

"I got confused," she said. She mailed the dog.

Gale, 21, blonde, and an actress, called the dog and cried. Someone else called the newspapers. A passerby called the post office.

"The postal authorities came," Miss Gilmore explained.

"A man in a uniform, with a key. He opened the box and there was Snipper, right down in the bottom. Some lady had dropped a letter on his head."

Miss Gilmore got nothing more than a hard look from postal authorities.

"If this was a Hollywood publicity stunt," said one, "it's the first time in Hollywood history that anyone has mailed a dog."

OXFORD, England — An all-male Oxford University college has made the unprecedented decision to admit women.

And if the rest of the university approves, New College motto: "manners maketh the man" — will become its first co-educational college.

New College — nearly 600 years old despite the name — wants to admit 20 women students. But opposition to the plan came from an unexpected quarter.

The five women colleges fear that if it goes co-educational it will hamper their own plans to expand.

At present there are 330 male students at New College.

WASHINGTON — An official investigation has disclosed that drunken flying has caused a sharp increase in the mortality rate among fliers.

The National Institutes of Health ordered elaborate laboratory tests when large numbers of dead birds were found on the Institute grounds.

Scientists discovered the small birds had eaten crabapples which had frozen, thawed and then fermented. The tipsy birds then took wing and crashed into walls and trees, killing themselves.

WINNIPEG — Motorists with serious traffic convictions should be forced to use blood red automobile licence plates, Police Chief Robert Taft said Thursday.

Chief Taft, speaking to the Greater Winnipeg Safety Council, said the plates would "let all the world know" of persons driving during a probationary period.

"I don't know if it has been done anywhere else but it has often been discussed. I'd like to see it in Winnipeg," he said.

Trade Group Makes Deals

HONG KONG Reuters — A Canadian trade mission from British Columbia left today for home by air after concluding business deals in Japan and Hong Kong worth a total of about $10,000,000.

R. R. Lofmark, British Columbia's minister of industrial development, trade and commerce, who heads the group, told reporters the deals covered the sale of Canadian wood and timber products, minerals and fruits and the purchase of sub-tropical fruits and other items from Japan and Hong Kong.

Cyprus Crisis Back to UN

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Johnson administration, balked in its efforts to set up direct talks between Greece and Turkey, turned to the United Nations today for an easing of the explosive Cyprus crisis.

After four days of apparently unsuccessful personal diplomacy, President Johnson sent Undersecretary of State George W. Ball, his Cyprus trouble shooter, to New York to report to UN officials on the results of his talks with Turkish Prime Minister Ismet Inonu and Greek Prime Minister George Papandreou.

Woman Impaired

A woman picked up after she made a spectacular exit from the Tudor House parking lot on Esquimalt Road shortly before noon Thursday today pleaded guilty in Esquimalt court to impaired driving.

Mrs. Florence Troutman, 617 Battery Street, almost hit a truck after she drove out on the road. Her car then mounted the curb and hit a power pole.

She was fined $300 and lost her licence.

ANTI-LEUKEMIA SERUM FOR SICK BOY STOPPED

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec College of Physicians and Surgeons announced today that injections of anablast, described by its producer as an anti-leukemia serum, have been suspended indefinitely in the treatment of 3½-year-old Rene Guyemer because of the boy's continuing worsening condition.

Doctors at Ste. Justine Hospital who have been treating the boy for the blood-cancer type of disease have obtained permission from the father to resume usual medical treatment.

B.C. Fishermen Support Offer

VANCOUVER (CP)—Homer Stevens, secretary of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union (Ind.), Thursday announced the union's negotiating committee has recommended acceptance of all salmon price offers made by the Fisheries Association of B.C. Mr. Stevens said the net fishermen have yet to vote on the association's offer, but it was expected they would go along with the committee's recommendation.

10 Members Of Gambling Squad Fired

NEW YORK (UPI)—Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy, so angry that his voice shook, Thursday fired 10 policemen and disbanded the anti-gambling squad as a result of a secret grand jury investigation into payoffs by bigtime gamblers.

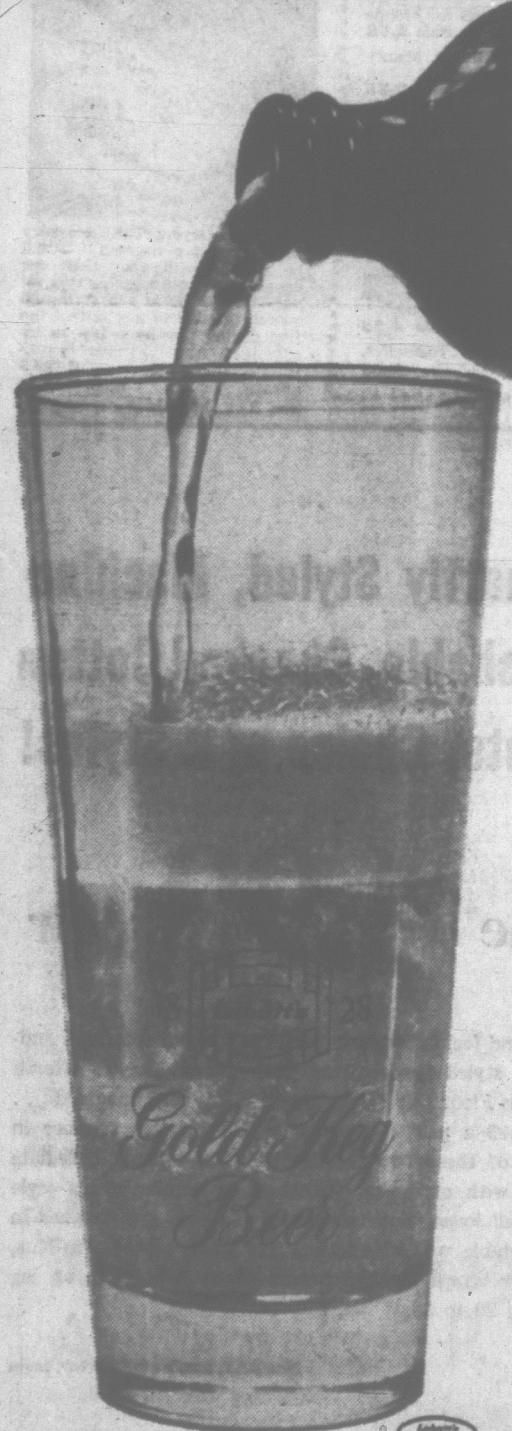

"We intend to uproot and bring to justice every man involved," Murphy said.

Among the men summarily fired from the force was Lieut. Stanley Koutnik, a leader of the chief inspector's squad which had been responsible for enforcement of gambling laws.

The rest of the squad was ordered transferred to other posts.

Murphy fired the 10 within minutes after chief assistant district attorney Alfred J. Scotti told him the men refused to waive immunity and testify before the grand jury. The incident was not known.

MANNING
"disturbing trend"

'Welfare State Concept' Charged

EDMONTON (CP)—The federal government is imbued with welfare state philosophy, Premier Manning said Wednesday in commenting on the Hall royal commission on health services and a recent meeting with federal authorities on Alberta's hospital co-insurance scheme.

On the royal commission, Mr. Manning told a press conference he finds it "most disturbing" that the proposed method of implementing the recommendations is "complete acceptance of the welfare state concept."

"I completely reject and repudiate the suggestion that the only way to have these high standards of medicine is by the government paying all the costs without regard to

the individual's ability and responsibility."

"This is a premise I simply can't accept. It is fundamentally unsound. If it is accepted, the people of Canada in the future will be faced with taxes and debt charges that would make present charges look like chicken feed."

Mr. Manning said the federal government indicated it did not feel that persons receiving the services should pay some of the cost.

THE FACULTY OF HEARING

The structure of the human ear is often described but a realization of its functioning is of no less importance for it is a delicate device set like a jewel in the protection of the skull. Few people realize that in some respects the ear is ten times more sensitive than the eye! The ear drum when responding to a slight sound moves less than a hundred millionth of an inch! Yet the sound pressure range is from one to five million... from the rustle of a leaf to the whine of a jet!

However we have no "ear-lid" to rest our hearing and excessive noise brings nervous tension and industrial fatigue—continually straining to hear is equally tiring and is relieved only by inattention. (Found noticeably in students and grandfathers).

Take care to preserve your hearing.

We have made "ear-lids" for water-skiers (to protect their eardrums) and ear plugs for apartment dwellers (to protect them from nervous tension) and, of course we carefully prescribe hearing aids to relieve the strain of concentration imposed on the partially deaf.

Professional attention and high quality hearing aids are available in the HBC Hearing Dept., Second Floor.

TAKING HIS TURN hunching behind a harpoon gun on Saturna Island is sculptor Sam Burich, a member of a whaling team organized by the Vancouver Public Aquarium. It's the group's second try to bag a killer whale for research purposes. The mammal-killing weapon is an ancient muzzle-loading harpoon which has been mounted on a sandstone shelf below the lighthouse. The gun has a 100-foot range.

Travel Restricted In Nimpkish Valley

CAMPBELL RIVER — Access to the Nimpkish Valley area is on a restricted basis effective immediately.

Wide publicity about the "opening up" of the beautiful timber area, thought to be premature by a number of logging company executives, has resulted in an influx of tourists, visitors and sightseers.

One or two minor incidents and several broken gates and locks has prompted Canadian Forest Products Ltd. to clamp restrictions on travel through the valley.

Until further notice, no permits will be issued to enter the valley through the Oktwanch gate, outside Vernon camp, except on the following basis:

Gate will only be open from 6 p.m. Fridays until midnight Sundays, permits to be issued to those visitors who will be able to get in and out between these hours on a weekend, or who are prepared to come in one weekend and out the next.

Travelers who can produce a letter from CFP Ltd. head office in Vancouver giving permission to enter the claim during the week.

Tourists, travelers or sightseers who wish to drive to Port McNeill, Port Alice, Port Hardy or other northern points during the week and who arrive at the gate without a letter, will be turned back.

A spokesman for CFP said negotiations are under way between his company and Elk River Timber Co. and Tahsis Co. to allow access on weekdays from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. However, he said such a move will depend on co-operation of the public in observing access regulations.

WINNER of a $2,000 teacher-training scholarship given annually by Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. to Nanaimo school student is Barry Sale. Award is one of seven made to future teachers by the company in its operating areas in B.C.

STATUS CHANGE ORDERED

Knee-Pant Stage Fading As Campbell R. Grows Up

Campbell River has grown up and must don adult status, the provincial government says.

The village must become either a town or a district municipality by next Jan. 1.

The Municipal Act decrees that the change must come when a village tops 2,500 population.

Two Injured In Collision

LADYSMITH — A Victorian is one of two men injured in a car crash early today on the Trans-Canada Highway, one mile north of here at Ivy Green Park.

Lewis A. Vanhecke, 2416 Wilkinson Road, and Alan Haythorne of North Surrey, both drivers, are reported in good condition in hospital here.

It is believed one car pulled out of the park and was struck by the other travelling north.

Police said both cars are total wrecks.

Gossipy Letters Help Tell The Story for Island Author

By MARGE GILROY

Nothing can replace the personal letter, filled with gossip and news of the day, when it comes to historical research.

Harry Olsen of Chemainus discovered this as he searched the countryside for material for his book, "Water Over the Wheel."

Mr. Olsen is an accountant by profession and history is his hobby. It was the tales told by his Kansas-born father that sparked his interest in historical events.

The 75-year-old father, who migrated to Chemainus many years ago, still revels in the adventures of Wyatt Earp, as he watches his favorite television program, "Gunsmoke."

His son Harry prefers untangling the adventures of the whites and the Indians as they battled to make Chemainus history.

Mr. Olsen enjoys the tales of old-timers and Indians, but he doesn't rely on them for historical facts.

"They drive me crazy at times. They lived in a world that was half fantasy and half reality," he said.

Old-timers remember historical events only as they related to them personally, not the event itself.

Material for his book came from the files of the B.C. Archives, sheriff's letters, and the greatest find of all was a folding desk belonging to John Hulbert.

Hulbert was the grandson of George Askew, one of the pioneer lumber barons in the area. In the desk were stacks of personal papers and private letters.

But unfortunately, Mr. Olsen said, when you live in the area you write about you can't use some of the more interesting accounts of the day.

"In particular there were some real gags in the Nanaimo police reports," he said.

He has saved files so some day they may be enclosed behind hard covers.

For three years Mr. Olsen researched, wrote and rewrote the history of Chemainus, with his wife as stenographer, file clerk and critic.

The Chemainus author is two-thirds of the way through his second book, which is an intermingling of fact and fiction, with Indians and half-breeds as the main characters.

He started writing as a hobby when he was a patient in Shaughnessy Hospital, and he intends to keep it as a hobby only.

The Chemainus Historical Society, established as a direct result of Mr. Olsen's writings, published the book.

Thursday night he spoke to the Victoria Historical Society, in Victoria, on Chemainus history between 1853 and 1863.

POLLUTION PROBLEMS

Gov't Planning Shawnigan Building Curbs

By FRANK RUTTER

The provincial government plans tighter building restrictions at Shawnigan Lake because of concern about water pollution.

Residents of the area say septic tanks below the high water line are contaminating the lake.

The lake supplies a community of about 1,000 people with water.

Central Vancouver Island Health Unit has been conducting an investigation for some time into complaints.

But health officials can't do much unless there is evidence of disease as a result of water pollution.

PLANNING AREA

The department has filed notice to residents that it intends to create a community planning area in Shawnigan Lake.

By doing this, it can send inspectors to the area to check on new and existing septic tanks.

In addition the department could regulate new building in the community.

The department has invited residents to give their opinion on the idea before declaring the planning area.

RATE BOOST STUDIED BY CHAMBER

DUNCAN — Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce has asked the B.C. Public Utilities Commission for full information on an application by transport firms for freight rate boosts on Vancouver Island.

The chamber was told the new rates are to become effective July 1. Director Archie Stevenson said the increases would impose additional hardships on farmers.

Chamber members also voted to refer the matter to the Associated Chambers of Commerce of B.C. for possible action.

Alberni Union
Picket Rights
Due for Test

A major test of an important labor union principle is scheduled before the B.C. Labor Relations Board July 7 in connection with the Alberni Valley strike against MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Company.

Officials of the IWA, the pulp and sulphite workers, the electrical workers' union and the papermakers' union have been ordered before the board as a result of a complaint by the company that they are restricting the company's production.

This, it is complained, has been brought about because their workers have declined to cross picket lines of the office workers' union, which is on strike.

PICKET RIGHTS

The hearing could bring into focus the entire issue of the right of union men to observe a picket line even though they are not on strike themselves.

The complaint was laid by the company in Vancouver on Thursday.

Meanwhile in Vancouver hopes for a settlement were still alive as company and union officials met with provincial conciliator G. A. Little.

The meeting was still under way this afternoon.

IWA spokesman in Vancouver, Grant McNeil, told the Times today:

"The issue here is: Are trade

Screaming Whites
In Attack

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) — Governor Farris Bryant flew to St. Augustine today for an on-the-scene inspection of a racial revolt reaching a new height of violence.

A screaming mob of hundreds of whites attacked civil rights marchers Thursday night and the integration leader, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., said only the refusal of Negroes to retaliate "saved the city from a bloody night of terror."

In flying to St. Augustine, Bryant bypassed a federal court hearing at Jacksonville, where he had been ordered to appear to show cause why he should not be held in contempt.

Federal Judge Bryan Simpson had issued the order after Bryant placed a ban-on-night demonstrations at St. Augustine. The judge had held previously that such a ban violated freedom of speech and assembly.

10 UNDER ARREST

About 30 persons were treated or examined at a hospital, and one was admitted for a rib fracture, after Thursday night's assault on the marchers. Two Negroes and eight whites were arrested.

King said he appealed to the White House for help at the height of Thursday night's melee and was assured the matter would be investigated. He frequently has called for federal marshals' protection.

For the first time in three weeks of almost daily confrontations, state police were openly threatened. On at least two occasions

VICTORIA'S new $1,347,000 YM-YWCA building was officially launched today with laying of cornerstone by Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes, assisted by S. J. Cunliffe, chairman of building committee.

New Y's Cornerstone Laid

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

In the shadow of Christ Church Cathedral, Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes today laid the cornerstone of Victoria's new $1,347,000 YM-YWCA building in the Cathedral Hill precinct.

I declare this stone well and truly laid," he said.

Mrs. Pearkes with Hugh R. Stephen, chairman of the campaign; Mrs. K. O. Wright, president of Victoria YM-YWCA; and representatives of the B.C. government, the city council and the municipalities watched the ceremony from a flower-decked dais.

The ceremony climaxed 18 months of intense campaigning in both eastern and western Canada, and the ceremony was performed in an atmosphere of reverence and jubilation.

"We pray that this building will stand through the years as a monument of honor and virtue to our young men and women," said Archdeacon J. W. Forth in a prayer of invocation.

Mrs. Wright referred to the new building — scheduled for completion in May next year — as a tribute to the "zeal, enthusiasm and accomplishment" of Mr. Stephen and his dedicated workers.

Mr. Stephen expressed thanks to them and to Stuart Keats, chairman of the national corporations division of the appeal and former publisher of the Victoria Times.

The bright red uniforms of the RCMP band from Ottawa, now touring British Columbia, added a splash of color to the ceremony, which was watched by several hundred spectators.

Seven-year-old Colleen Wong presented a bouquet of red roses to Mrs. Pearkes.

It was a big moment for

OTTAWA LOOKING AHEAD TO POSSIBLE SECESSION

OTTAWA (CP) — Government

officials are studying the possible effects on the rest of Canada if Quebec should secede from Confederation, Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons today.

He was asked by Reld Scott (NDP — Toronto Danforth) whether a study is being made of the economic, cultural and social effects of separation on the rest of Canada.

The prime minister replied the government has considered the matter and that officials of the government now are making that kind of study.

However, he didn't think any significant results could be drawn before the fall.

'SABOTAGED' PROGRAMOpposition Blasts Mike

OTTAWA (UPI)—The House of Commons today erupted into angry debate with opposition charges that Prime Minister Pearson had "sabotaged" his entire legislative program by introducing the flag issue.

A routine motion to extend the House sittings by 5½ hours a week to speed up the business was and allow a summer recess burst wide open as the opposition united to blame Pearson for failing to accept responsibility for organizing the Commons.

The Prime Minister was asked repeatedly to give a definite outline of the business he wanted passed and a deadline for a recess.

Opposition members pressed him to bring in immediately student loans and family allowances before the flag debate was resumed.

Pearson retorted that his party attached "the greatest possible importance to the flag, and when the House disposed of it other priority legislation would be in our memory," he said.

Poetry Helps Pass Time In 11-Year Wait for Death

ANGOLA, La. (AP)—In death cell No. 6, Edgar Labat awaits a date with the electric chair decreed 11 years ago, writing poetry to ease his burden.

An all-white jury convicted the 41-year-old former New Orleans hospital orderly March 23, 1953, of assisting in the rape of a white woman in 1950.

In refusing to grant a delay for a recent habeas corpus hearing, U.S. District Judge E. Gordon West said Labat has been on death row longer than any other prisoner.

"This case is now the oldest one in the United States," the judge said.

The electric chair is in the death house about three miles from Labat's cellblock.

That does not indicate wide-

By MARGE GILROY

Nothing can replace the personal letter, filled with gossip and news of the day, when it comes to historical research.

Harry Olsen of Chemainus discovered this as he searched the countryside for material for his book, "Waters Over the Wheel."

be introduced. This would include the student loans, allowances, federal-provincial fiscal arrangements, national defence act amendments and the pension plan if possible.

He said the government could not realistically propose a recess target date knowing that the Conservatives intended to prolong the flag debate.

An angry Reid Scott (NDP-Toronto Danforth), charged that the prime minister had automatically "sabotaged" his program with the flag on which every member in the Commons had a right to express his views. "This is the most stupidly and most illogically organized legislative body in our memory," he said.
